U.S. Readies 10 Man-Made Moons

Earth-circling satellites will be launched in the U.S. and Soviet Russia within 18 months, geophysicists said today. U.S. announced Thursday "work" has begun on the basketball-size gravity-defying spheres, using triple-stage rockets. U.S. plan to launch 10 of the spheres in 1957—the International Geophysical year. Though scientists discount reports U.S. and Soviet are racing to be the first to penetrate space, Washington sources hint the U.S. satellites could be ready six months before the target date, July 1, 1957—just about the time the Soviets say they'll launch their man-made moons. IKE SCHEDULES TALK WITH DULLES ON BIG 4

DENVER (UP)—President Eisenhower's recuperation from a heart attack is progressing sufficiently to permit him to schedule a conference here next Tuesday with secretary of state John Foster Dulles.

Mr. Eisenhower wants to talk with Dulles concerning the Oct. 27 meeting of the Big Four foreign ministers in Geneva.

Today's medical bulletin said the president had a good night's sleep, waking "refreshed and cheerful."

Vice-president Richard M. Nixon and Sherman Adams, the assistant to the president, will fly here Saturday with Dr. Paul Dudley White, the Boston heart specialist.

Downtown Vancouver Bid Foiled; Grabs $4,000 in Royal City

RUSS WHEAT BUY HINT AT MOSCOW

Pearson Talks on Trade May Mean Big Change in Canadian Policy

MOSCOW (BUP)—Soviet-Canadian trade talks opened today by External Affairs Minister Lester B. Pearson raised the prospect that in return for the admission of Russia to the most-favored-nation section of the Canadian tariffs, the Soviets would buy a substantial quantity of Canadian wheat.

Canada has a bargaining factor in the current talks in the fact that even such Soviet satellite countries as Czechoslovakia and Poland are on superior trading terms with Canada, a situation obviously damaging to the prestige of Moscow.

The question is whether Moscow is ready to remedy it at the cost of a substantial purchase of wheat, balanced mainly by the access of Russian furs to the Canadian market on the same terms as furs from the most favored nations.

Canadian trade advisors participating in today's talks emphasized that in the so-called normal wheat trading pattern of some years ago Russia bought Canadian wheat for its Asiatic requirements because shipment from Vancouver was cheaper than rail shipment from the Crimea.

The hope in the current talks is to revive this trading pattern, but Canadian negotiators were unprepared to predict what the prospects of a Canadian-Soviet general trade agreement might be under the somewhat complex factors existing.

They admitted, however, that such an agreement was a main objective of Canadian foreign policy.

Pearson today toured the permanent agricultural exhibition of Moscow. He lunched at the exhibition with top Russian agricultural officials and the visiting Canadian correspondents.

In the course of the lunch, Pearson presented Soviet officials with a gift of seeds of 36 varieties of hardy Canadian grains, including "samples of the best wheat in the world."

In accepting the gift, agricultural fair director N. V. Tsitsin expressed the hope that an early visit to Canada he might be able to bring seeds which by that time would represent the best wheat in the world. Tsitsin, however, did not dispute Pearson's claim of Canadian wheat supremacy.

MOSCOW BID FOR DULLES?

MOSCOW—There was speculation here today that the visit of Canadian External Affairs Minister Lester B. Pearson to Russia might be a prelude to an invitation to U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles to visit the Russian capital.

U.S. Deports Ex-Victorian

SEATTLE (AP)—Mrs. Hazel Anna Wolf's long fight to avoid deportation to her native Canada is over and the former Victoria woman who has lived in Seattle for more than 30 years will be deported Oct. 20.

John P. Boyd, district director of immigration today directed Mrs. Wolf's bondswomen to surrender her to his office on that date.

Mrs. Wolf was ordered deported after a hearing in 1951 on grounds she came to the United States illegally from Victoria in 1922. Her appeal to the supreme court of the United States failed. Three separate bills introduced in congress seeking legislation to permit Mrs. Wolf to remain in the United States failed to receive action.

French Troops Revolt Over African Service

ROUEN, France (UP)—Some 500 French army reservists recalled to fight in North Africa barricaded themselves in their barracks today and defied riot squads to oust them.

The group had been recalled for service with the 406th anti-aircraft and artillery regiment. They were to be flown to North Africa, but started their sitdown strike Thursday night in the Richepanse barracks in Rouen.

Meanwhile Premier Edgar Faure, fighting for his political life in the National Assembly, today mustered two former premiers to help plead with supporters who were deserting him.

Missing Cancer Victim Found In Hospital

TORONTO (CP)—Police said today that Grover Nelson 32, of Raymond, Alta., who disappeared three weeks ago after he was told he had cancer, has been located under an assumed name in the cancer ward of the Toronto General Hospital.

Nelson left Raymond to find a home for his wife and two children in Edmonton. He visited a doctor while there and was told he had cancer.

Nelson's family said in Raymond they feared he would take a room and die before getting medical attention. His wife said she wanted to join him as soon as she knew his whereabouts.

WORKERS GIVE $43,681 TO CHEST

Since the Community Chest campaign for $210,000 started Monday, $43,681.75 has been raised.

Last year, by comparison, only $29,046 was received. Canvass by more than 1,000 volunteers starts Monday in the residential areas.

CAIRO, Egypt (UP)—Crown Prince Feisal, foreign minister of Saudi Arabia, said today that Russia offered to supply his country with arms.

$100-A-WEEK ERRAND BOY

VANCOUVER (CP)—Walter Billon, 22-year-old mill worker, sentenced to eight years for trafficking, delivered $1,000,000 worth of narcotics up to Sept. 11, police said Thursday.

When he was arrested, $250,000 worth of heroin was found in his home, sealed into glass jars "like preserves."

For this, the man described as errand boy of the underworld received $100 a week.

Police said Thursday that Billon was a "part-time criminal" under surveillance by RCMP and city drug teams since July 28.

Officers, who asked their names not be used, traced Billon's activities for reporters.

He went to work each morning in a sawmill and went home to his pregnant wife each night.

On Sept. 10, the day before his arrest, he took his wife out.

The following day he received a telephone call to leave an ounce of heroin in the west end residential district.

Police moved in and 13 hours later he pleaded guilty before Magistrate Oscar Orr.

A probation report on Billon showed him to be a model husband with no record of any previous police trouble.

CROSSWORD PRIZE $125; 'FAN' WAS THE STOPPER

"Fan" was one of the words that threw contestants in The Times' Crossword Puzzle for a loss last week with the result that this week's total prize jumps to $125.

"A lovely — can help a model to look her best" was the clue, and most entries gave the answer as "fan." But a fan is part of a model's person and thus does not "help her." She can only be helped by something external to herself. "Fan" would be such a thing.

"Bet" and "Cast" were other correct answers that eluded most contestants, most of them giving "get" and "cost" as the solution.

Complete solution to last week's puzzle with explanations of more difficult clues and a new Crossword Puzzle for this week appear today on page 26.

$100,000 Fire

Razes Store At Pr. Rupert

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C. (CP)—A four-hour fire of unknown origin caused more than $100,000 damage to one of the city's biggest furniture and appliance stores Thursday—and almost claimed the life of a book-keeper.

Left a charred shell was a pioneer store operated by Jack and Duncan McRae.

Mrs. H. S. Nickerson, alone in the building after closing hours, was found on the floor gasping for breath by garage owner Gus Stromdahl, who carried the woman to safety.

The fire wiped out a dozen chesterfield and bedroom suites, hundreds of records, plus radio and phonograph equipment, 49 washing machines, and hundreds of dollars worth of carpets and mattresses.

The blaze was finally brought under control before it spread to an adjacent barber shop, doctor's office and a drug store.

Five tenants of apartments next door to the furniture store evacuated their furniture as hundreds of residents lined the streets.

Police blocked off all streets as firemen with three pieces of equipment and 1,000 feet of hose and gas masks, battled the blaze and smoke caused by burning linoleum and mattresses.

Island 'Loop' Road Still Far Distant

Completion of a loop road that will permit motorists to drive through Sooke to Port Renfrew, then east to Shawanigan Lake and the Trans-Canada Highway, is still in the far distant future, a B.C. Forest Products official said today.

Work now is going ahead on the Jordan River-Port Renfrew link, however, and will be declared "officially under way" at a ceremony later this month.

"We are still using the rail link on 12 miles of the route between Shawanigan Lake and Port Renfrew," the company spokesman said. "It would cost a fortune now to convert it to a truck haul."

END OF 1956

The west coast community of Port Renfrew, meanwhile, is waiting with interest for the completion of the Jordan River connection, possibly by the end of 1956.

At present the company is building an access road to the southern boundary of its operation that will permit full-scale work to go ahead. The opening ceremony will be held on its completion.

Meanwhile, Canadian Puget Sound Lumber and Timber Co. Ltd. of Jordan River is pushing a road steadily westward, and now has crossed Loss Creek, 12 miles beyond Jordan River.

B.C. Forest Products will build about five miles of road, leaving only a seven-mile stretch in between that will be built by the provincial government.

The roads are being built under the forest management plan, under which timber companies agree to build access roads through their properties.

Rhee Coup Nipped in Bud

SEOUL (Reuters)—The South Korean army counter-intelligence corps claimed today to have rounded up nine Koreans who had planned to assassinate President Syngman Rhee.

The nine planned to throw hand grenades at Rhee as he addressed a military parade Tuesday, the intelligence corps said. It charged the group intended to stage a military coup to overthrow the government after killing Rhee.

Sandown Feature Trophy

Top thoroughbreds from B.C. stables will go to the post Saturday for an $800 purse in the featured Percy Fox Memorial race at Sandown Track. The purse will be accompanied by the Percy Fox Memorial Trophy, held here by Elsie Edwards. Among the horses nominated for the race are Pen Oracle, Magic Note, Rennerb and Beau Sierra. IN TYPICAL POSE—Britain's Foreign Minister Harold Macmillan is seen, notes in one hand, wrist watch in the other, as he speaks to the British Foreign Press Association.

U.K. Army Will Back Russ Security Zone

BOURNEMOUTH, England (Reuters) — Foreign Secretary Macmillan said today the West is ready to redouble its forces in Europe to back legal guarantees of security to Russia after Germany is reunited.

He told the Conservative party's annual convention that these security proposals will be presented in greater detail to the Russians at the Big Four foreign ministers' meeting in Geneva Oct. 27.

Macmillan said that to make progress in Geneva the Western ministers must try to understand the attitude of Russia, which had suffered "terrible injuries" at German hands during the war.

"I am sure we can formulate plans which the world will feel—and I hope the Russian government will feel—will give full protection to Russia against any threat which might come from a reunited Germany, whether such a Germany chooses to join NATO or to remain neutral."

HALTWHISTLE, Eng. (AP) — Some folks in England have been watering their plants with beer to make them grow faster.

This struck Joseph Henderson as a criminal waste of brew, so he experimented. He reported Thursday he has dosed his chrysanthemums with three cups of lemonade weekly and has one plant 10 feet tall.

Family Killing Suspect Hates Soap-Operas

MELVILLE, Sask. (CP) — An Edmonton detective said Thursday 35-year-old John Petlock was carrying $11,952 when arrested in Edmonton six days after the Aug. 29 Fenwood slayings of four persons.

Det. A. E. Smith, testifying at Petlock's preliminary hearing on a murder charge, said he arrested the bespectacled farmer as he left an Edmonton rooming house. He took Petlock to a nearby police car where he found money in each of his hip pockets and one side pocket.

Petlock is charged with the rifle slaying of his brother Michael, 34, on his farm near here. Also killed were Michael's Fenwood, 20 miles northeast of 72-year-old mother, Mrs. Mary Petlock, his wife Angelina, 21, and their two children, Dianne, 3, and Michalene, 11 months.

Det. Smith and Const. F. W. Jones of the Edmonton RCMP detachment were among the 20 witnesses who took the stand at the afternoon session.

Nearly 300 persons crowded in and around the Canadian

Legion hall when the hearing opened Thursday.

BIG JOKE

Petlock, who yawned during most of the morning testimony, chuckled later when Saskatoon taxi driver R. J. Hagen was being questioned by crown counsel H. E. Ross of Melville.

Hagen said he drove Petlock to North Battleford Sept. 1. "He asked me to shut the car radio off," he said, "because there was a soap opera on and he said he didn't like the screaming women in them."

"You can't blame him for that," replied Mr. Ross. With this, Petlock smiled broadly, slapped his leg and stamped his foot on the floor.

50 Bodies Located At Airliner Wreck

LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP) — Skilled climbers today fought bitter cold and winds on a snow-covered mountain to retrieve the bodies of 66 persons killed Thursday in the worst commercial airline crash in American history.

Their goal is the near-perpendicular south face of 12,005-foot Medicine Bow peak, where a United Air Lines DC-4 crashed within an hour after leaving Denver for Salt Lake City and San Francisco. The flight originated on Wednesday night in New York City.

Rescuers who struggled through deep snow and up the precipitous peak Thursday counted about 50 bodies before rising winds and darkness forced their retreat. They descended for the night to a base camp a mile away.

The big four-engined plane carried a crew of three and 63 passengers, including two infants.

Among the dead were five women members of the Salt Lake City Mormon tabernacle choir, which recently concluded a concert tour of Europe.

Sheriff John Terrell, in charge of rescue operations, ordered special gear to the scene 40 miles west of here.

Advice to Strait Swimmers: Forget Waistline, Go to Fat

Two London physiologists, after a three-year study, have confirmed what many Victorians have long suspected, that long distance swimming in cold water is probably the greatest endurance test in the world of sport.

The two men, Doctors L. G. C. Pugh and O. D. Edhom, in an article entitled "The Physiology of Channel Swimmers," have some tips for local aspirants who are contemplating the Juan de Fuca Strait, which is known as the "Everest of swims."

The best way to prepare for the great test is to get fat, they said, because the more blubber you carry the less cold will get down to your bones. The physiologists are associated with the division of human physiology of the National Institute for Medical Research, London.

SKELETONS BEWARE

Drs. Pugh and Edhom make quick work of thin people. In effect, they say "Stay home," and add:

"Many channel swimmers are grossly fat. The increased insulation and the decreased rate of heat loss appear to be the chief factors enabling channel swimmers to maintain body-temperatures in cold water for a long time."

Canada's Mafilyn Bell is a notable exception to this rule. The 17-year-old Toronto miss is a trim 119 pounds, yet she was the only woman to swim the channel in 1955, and the only person ever to have conquered the chilly grind across Lake Ontario.

Freed After 4 Years Spent in 'Death Row'

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Joseph L. Taborsky, 31, is a free man after more than four years in "death row." He was sentenced June 7, 1951, to die in the electric chair for the fatal shooting of a liquor store owner. Taborsky insisted he was innocent, but was convicted on the testimony of his brother, Albert, 29. Albert has since been declared insane, and this won Joseph a new trial.

Victoria Resolution Wins Support; Trail Mayor Elected President

(CP and BUP Dispatches)
PRINCE GEORGE—Mayor E. G. Fletcher of Trail was elected president of the B.C. Union of Municipalities at the 52nd annual convention here, succeeding Mayor Fred Jackson of New Westminster.

Reeve J. W. Casey, Saanich, was elected first vice-president; Mayor G. E. Hills, Prince Rupert, second vice-president; Commissioner A. B. Fraser, Quesnel, village representative. Executive members for the coming year are Ald. J. W. Cornett, Vancouver; Ald. Mrs. Carrie J. Gray, Prince George; Mayor J. J. Ladd, Kelowna; Reeve C. W. Macsorely, Burnaby; Mayor George Muir, Nanaimo; Reeve W. T. Richardson, Chilliwack; Mayor Clifford Swan, Kimberley, and Mayor Charles Cates, North Vancouver.

The convention Thursday endorsed Victoria alderman Geoff. Edgelow's resolution calling for a change in provincial law to allow a six-day shopping week in any community that desires. The resolution originated in the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau, of which Ald. Edgelow is a director.

Also endorsed was another Victoria resolution asking the government to provide that cancellation boards give written reasons for their decisions in disputes between municipalities and their employees.

The convention approved a Courtenay request for amendment of the cemeteries act to free municipally-owned cemeteries from Public Utilities Commission control.

Various aspects of the Assessment Equalization Act were discussed Thursday, led by Mayor George Muir, of Nanaimo, UBCM representative on the provincial assessment advisory committee.

He said the act aimed at eliminating paper values of property in B.C. and at bringing all property to a common basis for provincial taxation purposes but had erupted in near-chaos in the initial stages.

After the Conference

IT IS NOT SURPRISING THAT the federal-provincial conference could reach no final agreement on the distribution of Canadian tax fields. This problem is so complicated and so weighted with local politics that more study will be needed to solve it. But two results of the conference seem to be definitely established.

First, the Federal Government has resisted a threatened provincial raid on the national treasury. It is willing to alter the distribution of tax fields; it will not pay in total to the provinces, by subsidies or federal tax exemptions, more than it is paying now.

This year's payment, in subsidies, is $320 millions. The amount will rise, of course, with the rise in national income and hence of all governmental revenues. But beyond this prospective increase Ottawa is not prepared to go.

If it were to pay more subsidies, or alternatively increase its proposed federal tax exemptions where provinces collect their own direct taxes, then its own revenue base would be threatened. In simpler terms, the Federal Government believes that it must continue to use its present share of the nation's tax-paying capacity.

The provinces naturally would like to get a larger share for themselves and they are at liberty to take a larger share by levying high taxes on income, and corporation profits. Ottawa cannot impose any limit on their collections. It says only that it will exempt provincial taxpayers from federal taxes to the amount of ten per cent in the case of the income tax and 8½ per cent in the case of the corporation tax.

If the provincial rates are fixed above those levels the provincial taxpayer must endure double taxation on the same income.

Few provinces, if any, will care to impose such double taxation. No taxpayer will wish to see it imposed. And all taxpayers should remember that however taxes are imposed, whether by federal or provincial authority, he will pay the bill. Any increased payment by Ottawa to the provinces would come out of his pocket.

The second result of the conference is equally significant. A tax system modeled roughly on the Rowell-Sirois Report has definitely broken down.

Until the last year or two the Federal Government hoped that Quebec would join the other nine provinces, rent its basic tax fields to Ottawa and accept subsidies in return. Now it is realized that Quebec, led by Mr. Duplessis or any other premier, will never accept those arrangements for reasons much deeper than finance.

Quebec feels so strongly opposed to what it considers an invasion of its "autonomy" that it has voluntarily refused huge sums of money ($30 millions this year) which it could have secured in subsidies.

The effect of Quebec's isolation from the general tax structure of the nation is unfortunate. It tends to emphasize and exacerbate the differences between the two major Canadian races. It provides a talking point for every Quebec demagogue and isolationist. Undoubtedly most of the arguments used against the tax agreements are false but they are damaging just the same.

Accordingly, the Federal Government has abandoned any hope of persuading Quebec to join the other provinces and that is the main reason for its new policy. Since some other provinces will now collect their own basic taxes, as Quebec does, French Canada, in a fiscal sense, will no longer be isolated.

Moreover, the heavy sacrifices long accepted by Quebec will be ended. Quebec taxpayers are no longer double-taxed, because Ottawa exempts them from federal taxes to the amount of their provincial taxes. As Quebec is a "have-not" province in statistical terms—that is to say, poorer per capita than the national average—it will be entitled to certain federal assistance, along with other poor provinces.

Unhappily all these arrangements have been widely misunderstood in some sections of the press. It has been reported that some special deal or "bonus" is provided for Quebec. In fact, the same formula applies to every province. None is given special treatment.

The British Columbia Government, desiring to spend far more money per capita than any in Canada, is dissatisfied with the new arrangements, which fail to provide it with large new sums from the federal treasury. Will Mr. Bennett proceed to levy provincial income and corporation taxes above the federal exemption level and double-tax this province?

When we already are paying the highest taxes in the nation, under a Government pledged to tax reduction, it seems improbable that Mr. Bennett will add to them. His plans will be awaited with interest.

Lieut.-Col Macgregor Macintosh

IN THE QUIET DIGNITY OF A special service at St. Mary's Church today friends and those close to Lieut.-Col. Macgregor Macintosh paid their respects to the memory of a gallant and courteous gentleman.

They remembered a man who had served his country in war and in peace and who had weighed no cost to himself in either service. They recalled his ready smile, his constant graciousness, his fine ability to make friends and his cheerful manner.

There were many incidents in his life which might have been marked for special reference. Yet it was not of incidents, honors or positions of importance that most who knew him thought today. It was of a personality that lent its own brightness to association with him and a warmth of affection he so readily inspired.

New Prosperity, Wider Gap

MR. HENRY FORD II HAS predicted a "new higher plateau" of prosperity for the American economy in the immediate future. He supports his opinion with the announcement of a record $500,000,000 expansion program for his company in 1956.

His forecast seems amply justified by the tenth annual report of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development. Released last month, that report stated the world has reached a higher level of prosperity than at any time in recent history.

The overall economic picture is cheering. Employment and output of goods have reached record proportions in the United States. The workshops of Europe are busy and even in the less advanced areas of Asia, Africa and parts of Latin-America higher incomes are the rule.

But there is a cloud on this bright horizon. While the more advanced countries have been moving to higher peaks of prosperity they have so far outstripped the backward areas that although the latter are making progress the gap between the "haves" and "have-nots" is widening. The rich are getting richer. The poor are merely not quite so poor as they were.

This is a negative view of conditions which are improving virtually all over the globe, but it is one that deserves attention.

It is natural enough to find the countries with industrial experience and training forging ahead more rapidly than those to which industrialization is new. And given time the latter might be expected to progress in a way to narrow the gap now apparent in living standards. Such might be the normal development if the world-wide process of improvement was allowed to continue without interference.

With present ideological rivalries there is little hope of non-interference. Communism has capitalized on the discrepancy between living standards of the "haves" and those of the "have-nots." The doctrine made in Moscow has been used to impress backward countries with the prospect of quick attainment of maximum living standards through its adoption. The fact that communism has not produced such results in nations where it has been accepted or imposed is of little importance to its advocates. They know that the people of less advanced nations have little opportunity to see and compare at first hand the results of the rival systems. And they continue to fan the flames of discontent among those who, better off than they were, appear to be losing ground against the leaders in the climb to higher prosperity.

The resulting attitude in many parts of Asia, Africa and Latin-America is one that must be recognized by the peoples of North America and Europe. It bespeaks patience and understanding on the part of those of us who are more fortunate. As we look forward to the new higher plateau of prosperity, we will do well to remember that the new high in many countries is measured only by the virtual assurance of one bowl of rice and the possible luxury of two bowls.

With all the conceivable assistance from the more advanced nations, it would be impossible to transform the "have-nots" into "haves" overnight. But, without regard to any humanitarian considerations, it is vitally important that we exert ourselves to speed up that process as far as it can go.

Chips

BY DAVID BROCK

YOU needn't try to figure out who the man in this story was. It didn't happen in Victoria. But it did happen, and it happened in Canada, and within the last few years. A mother took her child to a children's specialist. The child was a little alarmed, so she carried it into the consulting room instead of letting it walk. This was possibly silly of her. At any rate, the doctor thought it was, and he barked at her to put that child down at once. Which was silly of him, in his turn, because it frightened the child, who didn't like his tone and manner.

Seeing the child was alarmed, the doctor devoted a few minutes to making the child see he was a real old pal. This is often a good idea, if the doctor knows how to imitate a real old pal. But some doctors are better actors than others, and either this doctor needed to go back to dramatic school or the kid was a rotten critic. The show was a flop. The doctor told the mother he felt they'd had enough for one day, and said to come back the next week.

NEXT week the mother brought the child back. One look at the thespian, and the little critic cut loose. He had seen this show before, and hadn't even liked it the first time. The doctor talked soothingly and patronizingly. Old Dale Carnegie himself. How to win little friends and soften them up. Again the doctor said he felt they'd done enough for one day. Which made two days, all told. Time enough for the healing art later. One act at a time. An appointment was made for the following week.

But during the following week, the doctor decided to close up his practice and accept a salaried job. So the young critic never did get to consult him on matters of health after all. And do you know what? Maybe you do, at that, but it surprised the mother of the little sourpuss. It astounded her no little to receive a bill, at specialists' prices, for the two "consultations." Well, well, well. And look, readers... don't bother to tell me I am attacking the whole profession. I am not claiming this is a usual story. I am telling it as an UNUSUAL one. So don't get huffy. Take it easy. Old Doc Brock isn't going to hurt you.

ARDOR DID you read, last month, about the young man in Vancouver who confessed that each time his girl annoyed and frustrated him, he felt it necessary to set fire to other people's property? He said, with manly simplicity, that that's the way it affected him, that's all. One harsh word from the lady, and off he went to ignite some shed, garage, or frame dwelling. (He pleaded guilty to setting fire to all three.) He also turned in two false alarms, which sounds to me like a false declaration of love. Just a talker. I bet he turns in false alarms for all the girls, instead of really making things smoky.

Well, one man's ardor is another man's arson, I guess. Setting fire to a stranger's house is no queerer way of proving your loving anger than (say) dashing off to Africa to murder a hippopotamus you never met before... and whom the haughty lady never met before either. Long ago, Sir Alan Herbert dealt with the big-game aspect of rejected loving. The despondent man shouts to his servant:

Ho, varlet, run
And pack my gun.
My darling Jane rejects me.
I kind of ache
To shoot a snake,
For that's how it affects me.

At the end of the poem, the man advised the young woman to accept him, in order to spare the lives of untold lions, hippos, and other African scapegoats for the lovelorn.

IDEALLY, I suppose, the frantic lover should rush off and do something tremendously brave and risky. Climbing Everest in his bare feet or going over Niagara Falls in a piano, or something like that. If he failed, what would it matter? "Aint it grand to be blooming well dead?" And if he succeeded, it might bring him a certain amount of income from the advertising agencies, plus a renewal of the will to live. It might even impress the damsel who was once so chilly. If she had been merely capricious in refusing him, she might also be capricious in deciding that her future happiness would best be served by a man who had been over the falls in a piano emblazoned with her name, a name to him for ever sacred.

It is an obvious fact that many women feel a man has changed for the better once he has got his name in the headlines... even the silliest headlines. They feel it sheds lustre on themselves, perhaps, but they also feel it proves he is kind, clever, steady, rich, exciting, handsome, strong, and wise.

OF course, if you planned some dangerous exploit while numb or deranged with grief, and then suddenly woke up in the middle of the deed and said to yourself in horror "Good heavens, what am I doing here and how do I get home again?" well, that wouldn't be so good. Even if by some miracle you got back alive, it might make you permanently annoyed with the girl. But at least it would be better than going round setting fire to the property of strangers. Better artistically, morally, psychologically... better in every way. No, I am not forgetting the good old urge to destroy things. But destruction begins at home.

As Our Readers See It

THE REVERENCE REMAINS

The writer of the letter under the caption "Breathe Deep" in a recent issue of the Times, poses the same question as the inspired Psalmist did when pondering upon the marvelous works of the Creator, and His astonishing love to man: "What is man that thou shouldst think of him, and the Son of man that thou shouldst care for him?" (Psa 8).

The Bible gives the answer. After the Creator had created the universe, we read He said "Let us make man in our image."

The Hebrew word is "tselem" meaning "shadow, semblance."

The likeness bestowed upon man was the implanting within him of a measure of the Creator's attributes: wisdom, justice, love and power, thus setting him apart from the immense inanimate creation.

When anyone accepts the fact that the Bible is the Creator's revelation of Himself and His purpose for mankind, the perplexity disappears, but the awe and reverence remain.

NOAH'S ARK

I crave a little space in an effort to enlighten Harold Heskin with an explanation of the hidden secrets of this lovely bible story, Noah's Ark.

It says God demolished every two of a kind to enter into an Ark of the covenant and it's quite evident this story like many others in the bible are taken literally and thousands like Mr. Heskin are groping in the dark, wondering how this Ark was built and wondering how the thousands of humans, animals, reptiles, birds and insects were accommodated and fed floating around on a sea of water.

However this is a wonderful story with a secret meaning. God demanded every two of a kind, human male and female and all the species of life on earth to enter into a covenant to reproduce their kind, without which the regenerative forces of nature would cease to function and there would be no physical life on earth.

The Bible is a book of astronomical and astrological laws of the universe and to find its secrets it must be studied from this angle. It's a relief to students of astrology to know that the vibrations and characteristics of our new Aquarian age playing in upon us is ushering in a new day when old religions and conditions shall pass away and bring about that wonderful condition we have prayed for so long—peace on earth, good will to man, whether he is white, black, red or yellow.

Johnny and His Readers

It was my privilege to attend the Easter Convention of the British Columbia teachers in 1947, and one of the ablest addresses dealt with the necessity of placing greater demands on phonics in the teaching of reading.

In the light of that address may I be permitted a few comments on the discussion of Dr. Flesch's book, and the reply by the teachers.

We are reminded of Burke's statement: "It is difficult to bring an indictment against a nation." In a lesser degree it is difficult to bring an indictment against a profession.

Every teacher worthy of the name has used syllabication as a means to mastery in reading and spelling. That is phonics. If it was superseded by other methods in the twenties and thirties it was only for a time. We must honestly admit that that 20-year lapse is one factor resulting in a generation of non-readers and poor spellers, but it is only one factor.

The greater factor, and the more severe charge preferred by Dr. Flesch, is the fact that the content of present Readers is not Literature.

In every Reader, of course, are a few exceptions which prove the rule. The authors of the Readers deliberately sacrifice quality and style in order, scientifically, to have selections with the desired words repeated monotonously through a certain number of pages until those words become, they hope, a part of the child's vocabulary.

Dr. Flesch brings a severe and truthful indictment here, that our children cannot read because the Readers contain so little that is worth reading. The beautiful covers and pretty illustrations are but an ornament—the guile'd shore to a most dangerous sea.

The dangerous sea is the intellectual starvation of our children, and wittingly or unwittingly the sabotage of a noble language. Every language teacher must supplement the deadening repetition in our Readers by hightographed masterpieces from Eugene Field, or Stevenson or A. A. Milne and others.

According to the principles of pedagogy, repetition is a weak method to train the intellect and the memory. The faculty of reason and the discipline of concentration, exercised upon literature, and upon history stories which have intrinsic merit, reap a quicker and richer reward because they appeal to the child's intellect and heart, and the teacher is not under the constant necessity of creating a motive for the reading of each selection.

The writer for one term had a class of 20 of these poor readers in Grades 5 and 6, starving on the repetitive, monotonous diet of these modern pretty readers. On the Inspector's suggestion he tried the Readers' Digest special Readers. There was a brief flicker of life and that went out.

By hook or by crook he placed 20 copies of "Huck Finn" in their hands, and they were soon riding with Huck and the hidden secrets of this lovely bible story, Noah's Ark.

It says God demolished every two of a kind to enter into an Ark of the covenant and it's quite evident this story like many others in the bible are taken literally and thousands like Mr. Heskin are groping in the dark, wondering how this Ark was built and wondering how the thousands of humans, animals, reptiles, birds and insects were accommodated and fed floating around on a sea of water.

However this is a wonderful story with a secret meaning. God demanded every two of a kind, human male and female and all the species of life on earth to enter into a covenant to reproduce their kind, without which the regenerative forces of nature would cease to function and there would be no physical life on earth.

G. H. BEVAN,
1329 Fairfield road.

down the Mississippi, swimming ahead of the teacher, reading on because they could not be held back. They had found something to read.

Our children need "bread," food for the heart and intellect; are we to give them but the "stone" of dull repetitive nonsense that clutters up our Readers' and Histories?

When a student of History found these lines in the old Readers "The King received a mortal wound and fell. The English broke and fled. The Normans rallied and the day was lost. O what a sight was there beneath the moon and stars, With Saxon Harold lying 'neath the sky, While lights were gleaming from the Norman tents..." I say, as a student of History reads those lines, he has measured prose from the master pen of Dickens, easy to read, easy to memorize and his desire is to read more.

"On the 18th of September 1759" the rock-built citadel of Canada passed forever from the hands of its ancient masters." Parkman's lines in our former Readers were easy to read.

"We shall not flag nor fail. We shall go on to the end. We shall fight in France, we shall fight on the seas and oceans, we shall defend our island whatever the cost may be. We shall fight on the beaches, we shall fight on the landing fields and in the hills. We shall fight in the streets. We shall never surrender."

As educationists we would do well to erase a thousand pages of monotonous repetition in our present pretty Readers and let our boys and girls learn Sir Winston Churchill's noble utterances in whole or in part.

"Wonderous and very sweet is our name, Canada. The very word is like a boy's shout in the springtime, is like the clasp of geese going north and the roar of melting waters and the murmur of early winds. No one knows my country, neither the stranger nor her own sons. My country is hidden in the dark and teeming brain of youth upon the eve of its own manhood. My country has not found itself nor felt its power, nor learned its true place. It is all visions and doubts and hopes and dreams."

The educationists of Canada would do well to scrap another hundred thousand pages of pretty children's notes (so dear to the heart of stamp-wielding inspectors, with their pretty five-pointed stars) and place in the hands of a hundred thousand students this inspired author of "The Unknown Country." Let them read, and read omnivorously according to the dreams of adolescence and when they have read this book they will know Canada better.

I respectfully suggest to the educational administrators of Canada that we honestly admit the justice of Dr. Flesch's indictment and that we launch a crusade for literature and virile history in the books which we place in the hands of our children, then the problem of reading will vanish.

Brentwood and Its Water

By JOHN WINDSOR

THE people of Brentwood are worried about the future of their water supply and are anxiously awaiting answers to two questions. Will the Federal government turn over the Elk Lake system to the Brentwood Water Board, and what will Victoria's attitude be with regard to water rights?

Back in the 1870's, Victoria was given the water rights to Elk Lake and for many years the city's water came from there. Soon after the turn of the century however, new sources of supply were decided upon, and since that time nearly fifty years ago, Victoria has drawn no water from Elk Lake.

During the last war the Dominion Government put through a pipe line from the lake to supply the thousands of men stationed at Fat Bay and because of Victoria's water rights, the government has since paid the city one thousand dollars per annum.

The Brentwood Water District, formed some years ago, receives its water from this system and is naturally concerned with Ottawa's decision to abandon Elk Lake.

It seems probable that Brentwood, as the only area at present using Elk Lake, will be allowed to take over and run the system, but what Victoria's attitude on the water rights will be, is more doubtful. It was fair and just that it should have been given water rights when it was dependent on Elk Lake for its supply, but that day has long since passed, and Victoria should yield its rights to those who are now dependent on the lake for their water.

If Victoria had dug out the lake in the first place, and filled it, there would be grounds for charging a rental, but as this was done by a higher authority than even the city council, there is no justification for charging the people of Brentwood a toll.

In the days of old, the robber barons of the Rhine exacted tribute from the merchants who used the waters of that river for travel. We are quite sure that Mr. Harrison and his colleagues would not wish to be the modern version of these robber barons, exacting tribute for every glass of water that comes out of Brentwood taps.

It would appear to us that a gift of the rights to Elk Lake water, by the people of Victoria to the present and future users, would be an example of enlightened self-interest. The yearly one thousand dollars paid to the city is a mere pittance. On the other hand, the inhabitants of Brentwood follow the birds to Victoria for much of their shopping, and spend many thousands of dollars there each year.

Given assurance of a good water supply at reasonable rates, the district will continue to grow rapidly, which will mean more and more Brentwood dollars going to Victoria. It would be most unwise of Victoria, well aware as it is of the merits of good publicity, to endanger its relations with some of its best customers over such a small matter.

We are quite sure Mr. Harrison and his aldermen will merit the confidence the voters have placed in them by handling this matter with the imagination and generosity that will result in increasing benefits to all concerned.

MARGARET HURDON KEIFER

'You Are Cordially Invited...'

ON Wednesday we wrapped up the "Why Johnny Can't Read" series in The Times, together with the comment of local teachers.

We hoped that we'd been able to stimulate a little more thought on what our schools are doing and what they are trying to do in one important field. And we've had an opportunity to weigh in part, through opinion expressed by letter writers, the public's reaction.

As usual, when opinions differ, most of the readers picked up sides—and most were for Dr. Flesch and against the local school teachers.

Because controversy has an inclination to create militant partisanship, and because militancy often seeks to define a personal target, some of the sharpest criticism was directed at the writer of the teachers' comment. The actual writing was done by one person to establish coherence, but the material was a joint effort.

And in my opinion, which may be biased by friendship, the writer is one of the nicest guys in the profession. He wrote in the style he did in an effort to sustain readership. Apparently he succeeded.

Maybe it would have been better to attack the body of the argument for exclusive use of phonics rather than the actual Flesch. Maybe the teachers' position would have been stronger, too, if they'd given greater emphasis to the fact that they used "word recall" as part of their combined technique in teaching reading, but only as a part. Still, the teachers were given a free hand and they followed the course they chose.

But whichever side you were on, one paragraph by the teachers should appeal to you and ought to bring action.

"If Dr. Flesch's articles have disturbed you," the teachers said, "then you don't know what is going on in the school. You are most cordially invited to visit the school and see what happens there."

That, it seems to me, is about as fair an offer as could be made.

Before you go, you might take another look at the brief outline of "Aims of Education in British Columbia" issued recently by authority of the Minister of Education.

In brief summary they are:

"To ensure that all pupils master the fundamental skills of learning to the limit of their abilities."

"To help all pupils to develop healthy minds and sound bodies."

"To help pupils to become familiar with that which is great and valuable in history, science and art."

"To guide pupils in the development of such qualities of character and citizenship as good personal habits, willingness to work with others, honesty, obedience and self-control."

"To co-operate with parents in guiding the growth and development of their children."

"To teach each pupil to do his best work by maintaining high standards of performance in all phases of the school program."

"To instill in all pupils respect for high standards of work and an appreciation for the efforts of others."

"To develop in all pupils an understanding of the responsibilities and privileges of life in a democracy."

"To encourage self-discipline in pupils by requiring acceptable standards of performance and behaviour in all phases of the school program."

"To teach pupils some common manual skills as a means of helping them become practical and useful citizens."

"To give pupils some guidance in the choice of a career and some opportunity to begin preparation for occupational life."

"To seek out and develop pupils' special talents and potentialities and to assist them in developing their strengths and overcoming or adjusting to handicaps or weaknesses."

Though this set of objectives includes the Three R's it certainly isn't limited to them. In the world we have today, such a limitation would seem pretty unrealistic.

The aim's look good to me. There's still a question, though, over how close the schools are coming to their targets.

Probably there's only one way of finding out—by going to the schools. And the teachers who put out the Johnny series have issued the invitation. It ought to be worth accepting.

Even if some haven't any Johnny in the class, they're chipping in the money to finance the school. Maybe they ought to find out at first hand what they're getting—not wait for somebody else, informed or uninformed, to tell them.

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Quick Diagnosis Not Always Best

Dr. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation.

ALL THROUGH THE AGES WISE AND thoughtful physicians have wished that people would not always expect an immediate diagnosis, but would understand and be patient and even particularly appreciative, when the doctor says frankly and honestly, "I cannot yet say what is the matter."

Commonly, when a person goes to a physician feeling tired or below par, or suffering from some indigestion or abdominal discomfort, the doctor cannot say right off what the trouble is. Usually, he goes ahead and studies the situation, making tests that are necessary to rule out serious disease, such as a smoldering infection or cancer. Perhaps he finds no sign of disease, and then, still, he may be puzzled and unable to say just what has gone wrong. Sometimes he has to wait for some days or weeks until some new symptoms appear to clarify the diagnosis.

Whenever I am puzzled as to a diagnosis, or when I am unable to say which one of 20 possible diagnoses is the correct one, I like to confess my ignorance. I think this is best for the patient, and I know it is best for me and my mental and scientific development. If, for years, I had taken the easy way out, and had often made some senseless but nice-sounding diagnosis, I fear I soon would have wound up unconscious of the fact that I was commonly fooling myself as well as the patient. Only the man who daily admits his lack of knowledge can keep growing intellectually.

I THINK MOST INTELLIGENT PATIENTS accept such frankness and like it. Doubtless, some of the less intelligent ones will look down on the honest doctor as an ignoramus, but this probability has to be accepted philosophically.

I have discussed this problem often with my graduate students, and have advocated truth-telling; but usually their impression has been that, since the patient is likely to despise the doctor who admits that he cannot tell immediately what is wrong, it is the part of wisdom and prudence always to give some sort of a diagnosis, usually in some term that does not mean much, if it means anything.

Often used to call these stop-gap diagnoses "cloaks for ignorance," and, as he would go on to say, from time to time the fashion in cloaks for ignorance changes just like the fashion in women's cloaks changes! This is so true.

ago a fashionable diagnosis that pleased many nervous and worried constant-complainers was "intestinal auto-intoxication." I never could satisfy myself that there was such a disease, but for years the diagnosis served well thousands of physicians when they wanted quickly to get a nervous and fussy and talkative woman or man out of the office. Finally, the term went out of fashion, and for years I have rarely heard of it.

Another wonderful diagnosis that, for years, was all the rage was neurasthenia. The word meant weakness of the nerves, but this did not explain much, and hence, after a while, it went out of fashion. Later, when the new X-ray machines came into use and, for the first time in history, doctors could see how far down a stomach can stretch when the person is standing (previously they had seen the stomach only up in the region into which it floats when a person is lying down), they were much surprised. Unfortunately, they jumped to the conclusion that these so-called dropped or potted stomachs must be causing the nervous discomforts of always-sickly women, and soon surgeons were stitching many a stomach up where they thought it should stay.

An eminent surgeon devised a "hammock operation" for "dropped stomachs," and pottosis became a popular diagnosis. For years, unfortunate women in hospitals had to sleep with the foot of their bed raised on blocks. Fortunately, this fashion went out, and today most able physicians have lost their faith in pottosis. Today about the only potted organ ever stretched up is the kidney, and this operation has largely been given up. The surgeons at a place like the Mayo Clinic rarely perform it.

MANY A PERSON MAY ASK, A BIT angrily, "Why do doctors use these fashionable diagnoses that mean little if anything?" I should say, because the public demands them. Many an able, idealistic physician would much prefer to take an hour off in which to try to convince a neurotic woman that all she has wrong is a bad nervous inheritance, together perhaps with the strain of living with an alcoholic husband. But the physician (1) hasn't the time, or (2) if he did take the time, the woman might well go away angry and dissatisfied and even outraged. (3) Usually women will hate to pay $10 for a half-hour of kindly and honest advice, when she will gladly pay $50 for an ill-advised and futile operation.

It is sad that such patients put a terrific temptation in the way of the young physicians, just out of college, to treat nervous patients not as they should be treated but as they want to be treated and as they will gladly pay to be treated.

B.C. ALL PARTY TALKS URGED BY CCF LEADER

VANCOUVER (CP)—Arnold Webster, CCF chieftain in British Columbia, said Wednesday there should be more consultation between the government opposition.

He told University of B.C. students: "Since the CCF and Liberal parties in B.C. represent such a large section of the voters, there should be greater consultation between all parties."

"Instead, the administration proceeds in the old tradition of considering that the opposition is there only to destroy the government."

"There should be no room for political pettiness," the CCF leader said.

'BUT NOT LIKE BCHIS'

B.C. Doctors Back Health Insurance

VANCOUVER (CP)—A comprehensive health insurance scheme, with participants paying their own premiums, is favored by provincial medical men, a spokesman said here Thursday.

Dr. Arthur Bagnall, spokesman for the B.C. division of the Canadian Medical Association, said there is no reason why a comprehensive scheme shouldn't be started here within the next few years.

But he said it would be "calamitous" if it were run on the same basis as the B.C. Hospital Insurance Scheme.

Premiums for those who could not afford them could be paid by the government, he said.

Doctors at the annual convention also called for a civil disaster plan.

Mail Bag Dropped By Plane in June Found in Bush

WILLIAMS LAKE, B.C. (CP)—Sawmill-owner Sid Patterson has found a bag of mail missing since June when it dropped from an aircraft flying 10,000 feet overhead.

Two bags of mail were reported missing when a Canadian Pacific Airlines plane landed at Prince George June 1 on a flight from Vancouver to Whitehorse. It was believed the mail fell out of the plane's freight department. The section doors were found open.

Patterson found the mail bag in heavy brush Sept. 17. Authorities said Thursday the bag contained 100 vials of antitoxin, none of which were broken.

The other bag is still missing.

REVIEW OF PENSIONS MIGHT BOOST PAYMENT

There are many war veterans now receiving 30 and 35 per cent pensions who, if they had their cases reviewed, might obtain 50 per cent, Donald M. Thompson, director, Canadian Legion Dominion Service Bureau, Ottawa, said here Thursday.

Addressing Lower Island Legion service officers, he also said many First World War pensioners have not had their pensions reviewed for many years, and some would be eligible for increases if re-examined.

Since 1926 when the Legion Service branch started, nearly 28,000 persons had been assisted and $5,000,000 received in retroactive benefits.

Ross Bay Cemetery Headstones Toppling, Says Nesbitt; 'Disgraceful Decay' Seen

The annual $50,000 grant from the provincial government to the city should be used for more practical things than building basins for model yachts, historian James Nesbitt told the annual harvest festival of St. Mark's parish.

New Switch-Tory Raid On Socreds?

TORONTO (CP)—John Diefenbaker, Progressive Conservative MP for Prince Albert, said Thursday he thinks many members of the Social Credit and CCF parties can be brought into the Conservative party.

In an address at a party luncheon here, the Saskatchewan member said he sees a "definite world trend away from Socialism and third parties which deride tradition and believe in change based on experiment rather than the experience of history."

"In my opinion, many of the rank and file of the CCF and Social Credit parties can be brought within the Conservative party in the next federal election if the Conservative party remains true to itself and its abiding principles," he said.

2nd Atoms-for-Peace Conference Proposed

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Britain and the United States proposed formally today that a second atoms-for-peace conference "be held under the auspices of the United Nations in about three years."

The two Western powers submitted a resolution before the General Assembly's 60-nation political committee began debate on the peaceful uses of atomic energy.

The resolution expressed satisfaction with the results of the atoms-for-peace conference held in Geneva last Aug. 8-20 and proposed that the assembly continue the advisory committee which planned the Geneva meeting.

The proposal also noted "with

He suggested it would be more appropriate to spend some of the money restoring Ross Bay cemetery, where graves are sinking and headstones toppling.

"This is," he said, "the responsibility of Victoria, Esquimalt, Oak Bay and Saanich, for many of their people are buried at Ross Bay."

ACTION NEEDED

Unless something is done soon with co-operation of municipalities, Ross Bay will fall into disgraceful decay, he said.

"We erect statues and plaques to honor our pioneers, yet, at the same time, we shamefully neglect their graves."

As a start, he said, the provincial government might look after graves of premiers and lieutenant-governors; the City of Victoria the graves of mayors; the Anglican Church, the family plot of Bishop George Hills, first Anglican bishop of this area.

History of Greater Victoria, he said, was written "in stone, marble and concrete at Ross Bay. It should not be allowed to perish."

satisfaction that substantial progress has been made toward negotiation of a draft statute" establishing an international agency to promote the peaceful uses of atomic energy. The statute, the resolution said, has been circulated to all interested governments for their consideration and comment.

U.K. Frigate 'Venus' Sabotaged by Seaman

LONDON (UP)—The British admiralty announced Thursday that a seaman sabotaged the engine room of a frigate scheduled to sail Thursday as an escort to British warships on their first post-war cruise to Russia.

Details were not disclosed, but informants said the engine room was flooded and that instruments were damaged. The admiralty said the damage was not serious and did not affect the ship's program or "her seagoing efficiency."

The admiralty statement said the sabotage occurred before RMS Venus left Devonport, England, last week en route to Rosyth, Scotland, where it was to have met a squadron leaving for Leningrad.

PM's Plan Freezes Subsidy, Makes B.C.'s Bennett Bitter

Revenues From Ottawa Wouldn't Rise for Years

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—Condemning the federal-provincial conference as a "fiasco" Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia was the first premier to leave the Canadian capital.

He departed on an early Thursday afternoon train before the conference had officially come to an end. He is due to arrive at the west coast Sunday.

When the British Columbia delegates arrived in Ottawa they brought with them proposals for increasing payments from the federal treasury to the provinces that would have cost a total of $600,000,000. The plan was rejected by the federal authorities as unrealistic and impractical.

But Premier Bennett regarded as equally unrealistic and impractical the federal proposals for a new tax formula to supplant the present tax rental agreements which end March 31, 1957.

Under the new formula unveiled by the federal government, but carefully labelled just a "suggestion," B.C. would lose the most of all the provinces—$5,328,000 of its current $46,028,000 revenues from Ottawa—but this will be made up by Prime Minister St. Laurent's guarantee that provincial revenues from Ottawa will never be less than 100 per cent of the payments in the final year (1956-57) of the existing tax rental agreement.

This would mean that B.C. would remain at the "floor" for several years until the escalator feature of the new plan finally raised its revenues above the floor.

Premier Bennett was bitter over the adverse effects the proposed new formula would have on his province's revenues. He regarded the conference as something much less than a success. But Prime Minister St. Laurent described the conference as "a success as far as it went."

DUPLESSIS CHEERFUL
Premier Maurice Duplessis of Quebec was cheerful. He said the meeting had been carried on in a cordial atmosphere with no "take it or leave it" proposition. Indication would "take it." They had nothing to lose and everything to gain.
Premier Duplessis scouted newspaper reports estimating Quebec would get an extra $40,000,000 a year from the federal formula.

"Nothing of the kind was proposed," he said. "From such an amount certain sums would have to be deducted." But he did not amplify. Federal spokesmen have said Quebec's gain would be $22,000,000.

Premier Leslie Frost of Ontario said the meetings had accomplished much but more work remained to be done.

THE BOX SCORE

OTTAWA—Conclusion of the federal-provincial conference recorded the following box score on its agenda items:

Fiscal Relations

Agreement among the premiers that the new federal tax formula is superior to the old tax rental system. But strenuous objection to the suggested rates put forward by the federal authorities. The conference adjourned without reaching any agreement on this its main topic. Further negotiations between Ottawa and the provinces will take place by mail. It will be decided later whether another conference should be convened before the federal government formulates its definite proposal.

Public Investment Program

No definite decisions but a number of suggestions discussed. A meeting will be held later this year to consider steps to be taken to continue work on the Trans-Canada highway. Provinces having suggestions in the field of public investment will put them before the appropriate federal ministers. They will be studied and possibly a future conference will be called. Ottawa indicated not necessary at this peak prosperity period to undertake work schemes.

Continuing Consultations

A federal-provincial continuing committee will be set up consisting of federal and provincial officials. It will meet to exchange information and examine technical problems in federal-provincial fiscal and economic relations. The committee will not take collective action but each member will report to his respective government.

National Health Insurance

A committee of ministers appointed to consider in details the subject of health insurance. The committee will be assisted by officials from each government. The federal government indicated it is prepared to proceed when a majority of the provinces representing a majority of the population ready to participate. Only three provinces indicated they were anxious to make an early start: Saskatchewan, British Columbia and Ontario.

agreement—Saskatchewan, British Columbia and Newfoundland.

Marketing

Provincial agriculture products marketing legislation now in doubt as to its validity is to be submitted to the courts.

Wheat Problems

Rt. Hon. C. D. Howe, minister of trade and commerce, outlined for whole-conference the magnitude of wheat marketing and storage problems now confronting the Canadian government and the western farmer. Possibilities of providing funds for farmers on their stored wheat is to be explored at conference in Ottawa.

Unemployment

Details of the federal plan to provide unemployment assistance for the provinces were discussed. Three have signified their intention of signing the

Gas Pipeline

Prime Minister St. Laurent and Premier Frost conferred. The prime minister reported that the federal and Ontario governments will be prepared to jointly build the northern Ontario section of the all-Canada line if it can be shown such action is necessary to complete the all-Canadian line.

Bridge Club Seeking Recruits

Bridge is a span, is a link over water, but mostly, it's a fervent pastime for 50 Victorians.

These are the members of the Victoria Duplicate Bridge Club, now recruiting additional members for the fall season.

Coming Monday and Tuesday is a two-session open pairs tournament, which get underway at 9:02 Government at 7:30 p.m.

"Come one, come all," say club officials, "just come and find a place."

Indicative of the increasing interest in bridge is a course in the subject at Victoria High school, each Thursday at 7 p.m. Last evening 48 persons showed up to learn how to outwit their neighbors over the bridge table. The course, sponsored by the school board, will run 22 weeks, but persons interested should indicate enthusiasm by next Thursday, course entry deadline.

Bridge interest is an unlimited thing. There are "bridge wives" and "bridge husbands" similar to "golf husbands" . . . people who consider a bridge covered table a personal challenge. Making up this group are a variety of vocations, barbers, musicians, advertising men, nurses' aides . . . everyone.

The club is not necessarily for the experts. Said a club spokesman: "We don't mind beginners."

It's an odd little psychological twist that musicians, generally believed to be an emotional tribe, make excellent bridge players.

So the Victoria Duplicate Bridge Club says come, and if you must, bring your flute.

On The OUTDOOR FRONT

With DENNY BOYD

Tales of stripped reels, bent hooks and 16-pounders taken on bucktail flies are filtering out of Cowichan Bay, making the prospects promising for the annual Cowichan Bay Salmon Club's Coho Derby.

The big derby will hold the outdoor spotlight for three days this week-end as sports fishermen pursue silvers big enough to qualify for part of the $1,000 in cash and merchandise prizes.

If the prize list isn't lure enough, the report of a new run of cantankerous coho entering the Bay Thursday morning should do the trick.

Stewart's Marine Works reports that fishing, which had been only spotty previously, picked up greatly Thursday morning with nearly all boats out bringing in two or three fish. The fish showed a particularly ravenous appetite between 5.45 and 6.45 in the morning.

A great many of the fish taken Thursday morning were in the 11-14-pound class with one angler bringing in a 16½-pounder that had taken his surface-trotted bucktail fly.

Majority of the anglers are finding the best lure to be the pale blue and white fly, with or without a spinner.

Close to $2,000 in cash and merchandise will be given away in the three days of the Coho Derby, which begins Saturday, Sunday and Monday at dawn and concludes at 4.30 each day.

Angler weighing in the biggest fish on each of the three derby days will receive $100 and an additional 13 merchandise prizes will be awarded each day. The Anchor Cafe Trophy will be awarded for the biggest fish of the three days.

Rod and reel must be used with artificial lures. No herring strip, live or compound bait permitted.

All fish must be in hands of weighmaster at Government Wharf by 4.30 each day.

FISHING CAPSULES—Frannie Morse and Bill Scott found the action hot in Deep Cove this week. They boated three coho, all around nine pounds, lost four more and reported plenty of fish showing. They were using bucktails. . . . Claude Creed has been picking up fish steadily around Senanus Island. . . . Grilse in Saanich Inlet are plentiful and becoming plump. The average is about a pound, good fry-pan size. . . . Trolling in Shawnigan Lake has been fruitful for trout fishermen who don't mind the cold. . . . Fishing with silver or red flies in the upper Cowichan River, in the vicinity of the hotel and down, has been a bountiful pastime for the fresh-water followers.

City's New Line-Up Mixes Youth, Wisdom

An almost equal division of veterans and newcomers will see action Saturday afternoon at Athletic Park when Victoria's revamped Coast Soccer League entry meets Vancouver Pilseners in the first game of the new season.

The team also has a new name. Sponsored by the Strathcona Hotel, it will be called the Victoria Strathconas.

The squad has been undergoing several stiff workouts in preparation for its debut, and after Thursday night's practice

Gorge Handicap Final Sunday

Mrs. S. Paterson and Mrs. O. Carroll have advanced to Sunday's 18-hole final for the Gorge Vale Golf Club women's handicap championship.

Mrs. Paterson gained the final by defeating Miss N. O'Connell, 2 up, in their semi-final match, and Mrs. O. Carroll advanced with a 4 and 3 victory over Miss I. Stock.

Sunday's draw follows.

10.30—Championship: Mrs. S. Paterson and Mrs. O. Carroll.
10.35—First flight: Mrs. J. Clark vs. Mrs. R. Thirrell.
10.40—Second flight: Mrs. R. Hunt vs. Miss C. Stevenson.

FRANCHISE AT STAKE
BUFFALO, N.Y. (BUP)—Civic leaders met today in an 11th hour attempt to raise the necessary $150,000 sponsors need to purchase the local International League franchise from the Detroit Tigers, and indications were the drive would succeed.

THINKING CAP WINS

NEW YORK (AP)—With Nashua scratched because of the heavy rains and muddy track, Christiana Stable's Thinking Cap sloshed to a four-length victory over Westward Ho in the $27,000 1½-mile Lawrence Realization at Belmont Park Thursday.

Sky Hi Lee Low Bridged By Kenneth

Ken Kenneth, New Zealand wrestling champion, took his anger out on Sky Hi Lee in a grudge match that was the main event of Thursday night's wrestling card at Victoria Ballroom.

Kenneth defeated Lee at his own rough-house game. Tiny Tim Gerard and Tito Infante kicked and stomped Sky Low Low and Ivan the Terrible into submission in the midjet tag-team bout while Cliff Parker beat Detroit's Jim Saskay in the opener.

Hockey, Soccer, Grid Top Holiday Sport Card

Victoria Cougars, with their first two home appearances of the regular WHL schedule, will open and close the city's sports calendar for the coming Thanksgiving Day holiday week-end.

Cougars, headlining a full slate of sport attractions over the long week-end, will meet New Westminster Royals 'to-night at 8.30 at Memorial Arena in the lidlifter of their home season, and will be back at the arena at 2.30 Monday afternoon to entertain the Vancouver Canucks.

In addition to hockey, Canadian football, soccer, golf, fishing, horse racing and stock car racing will have their share of fans during the holiday.

On the football front, the crisp autumn air will bring out the juniors and intermediates for two games in each league. In the intermediate loop, Oak Bay Drakes will tangle with the up and coming Navy squad at

Drakes Can Clinch City Football Title

Oak Bay Drakes run into a make-or-break budge in their schedule this week-end when they play two key games in three days.

Currently holding down first place in the Victoria Intermediate Canadian Football League, Drakes meet the red-hot Navy club Saturday and then face Vampires in Monday's Thanksgiving Day game. Both games, at Macdonald Park, start at 2.

Navy, fresh from handing Vampires a 42-0 walloping last Saturday, can gain a first-place tie with a victory Saturday while Drakes, with a sweep of both week-end games, could clinch a first-place finish.

Frank Hindle's Navy squad has had its practice sessions this week interrupted by fleet exercises but hopes to have Archie Langston, Albert Reeves, M. Wilson and kicker Tom Humphries rushed ashore in time for the game. The sailors will be without Gerald Porter and Jim Clark, who were injured in last week's game.

Drakes hoped to have shifty Bob Monaghan in strip for Saturday's game, but the former St. Louis College star's 1955 football career lasted just one-half hour. Attend-

Lions Shorthanded For Week-End Games

By the Canadian Press

The liniment-banded men worked overtime patching up football players today as Canada's professional teams prepared for a busy Thanksgiving week-end.

There wasn't a club in either the Big Four or Western Inter-provincial Football Union that didn't have a list of aches and pains. And at least four teams report serious injuries.

ESKES' MILES AILING

In the WIFU, Edmonton Eskimos, who play British Columbia Lions at home Saturday, likely will be without halfback Rolfe Miles on offense. Miles is suffering from a groin injury.

Six of Lions' top players will not make the trip to Edmonton.

They are Al Pollard, Arnie Weinmeister, Walt Cuz, Bob Sirkowski, Keith Bennet and Glen Christian.

Lions host Winnipeg Blue Bombers Monday afternoon. Calgary reports everyone in reasonable shape. The Stamps have been taking it easy for the last few days, giving their "walking wounded" a chance to recuperate.

They meet Saskatchewan Roughriders at Regina Monday. Regina fans are hoping for the reappearance of end Harry Lampman, one of the WIFU's top pass receivers last season.

Title Rematch

BOSTON (AP)—Welterweight boxing champion Carmen Basilio and challenger Tony DeMarco Thursday signed contracts for a Nov. 30 rematch of their roaring summer slugfest at Syracuse where the title changed hands.

Stranahan Leads

BALTIMORE (AP)—Former amateur star Frank Stranahan and darkhorse Ray Heins cashed in on sparkling approach shots Thursday to tie for the first round lead of the Eastern open golf tournament with five-under-par 67s.

Right on their heels with 68s were long-hitting Mike Souhak and Mike Homa.

Stamps Go With Old Pros

CALGARY (CP)—Coach

Frank Currie of Calgary Stampers feels he is going into the Western Hockey League season with a well-balanced club of tried veterans and rookies.

He's pleased with the showings the boys made in exhibition games and adds that the rookies in his camp all have looked impressive.

Thursday, the day after the Stamps tied Penticton V's 3-3 in an exhibition game, Currie cut the squad to 16 players—a goaltender, five defencemen and 10 forwards.

In goal when Stamps meet the newly-formed Winnipeg

Comets tonight will be Doug Stevenson, who was net-minder for the club last season. But the club expects to carry two goalies this year and the second will be Ray Fredericks, who split his services between Ottawa and Buffalo last year and has been at the Black Hawk training camp for the last four weeks.

"We're building the club around the pros we have on hand and filling in the rest of the spots with young fellows who definitely will go in the lineups," says Currie.

The pros who form the nucleus are defencemen Pat Curney and Gus Kyle and forwarders Ray Deery, Steve Wittke, Bill Shveta, Sid Flinney, Gerry Couture, Jim McFadden and Archie Scott.

To these he added defencemen Freddie and Stanley Hucul, who hail from Kindersley, Sask., and played with the Stamps last year and rookie Hawks camp.

Currie was non-committal on whether more players were forthcoming from the Black Hawks camp.

Canadian-Discovered Drug Aided Ike's Recovery

VANCOUVER (CP)—A "rat-kill" treatment devised by a team of Canadian doctors 15 years ago helped President Eisenhower along the road to recovery, it was disclosed here Thursday.

The United States president suffered a heart attack last month. Dr. Douglas Cameron, heart specialist here from Montreal to attend the annual convention of the British Columbia section of the Canadian Medical Association, said the president's trouble was caused by a clotting of blood which cut the flow of nourishment to an area of the heart.

Doctors cut down the chances of further complications by administering anti-coagulant drugs. Dr. Cameron said the same type of drug is used to kill rats. If administered in large enough quantities, it causes the rats to bleed to death whenever they receive the slightest cut.

You Pays Your Money Or You Don't Get In

NAGOYA, Japan (AP)—One Japanese family finally rebelled. The newspaper Asahi carries this story of a Nagoya wedding ceremony:

"When the guests arrived they found a reception desk set up at the entrance. The groom himself came out and said, looking rather embarrassed:

"I am sorry but a fee of 150 yen (41 cents) will be charged."

"When the money was paid each guest received in return a lunch box, a paper napkin and a small bottle of beer and was led upstairs."

Alastair Buchan Named Correspondent

LONDON (CP)—Alastair Buchan, son of a former governor-general of Canada, has been appointed diplomatic correspondent of The Observer, a London weekly newspaper. He succeeds William Clark, new adviser to Prime Minister Eden on press relations.

Buchan, 37, is a son of the late John Buchan, first Lord Tweedsmuir, who was governor-general of Canada before the Second World War.

2 Boys Suffocate in 'Trunk Ship' Locked by Imaginative Playmate

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UP)—Juvenile authorities today held a broken-hearted 10-year-old boy who admitted locking his brother and another boy in an attic trunk where they were suffocated.

A coroner's inquest was scheduled today into the deaths of the two boys. Authorities said Jim Primicerio, a "keen boy with lots of imagination and dreams," admitted locking the attic trunk in which the bodies of his brother, Dominick, 9, and Daniel Benicivengo, 8, were found Thursday after an all-night search.

The bodies were found when Jim and the other two youngsters had told his mother "Maybe they're in the trunk upstairs. They used to play there."

Authorities said he told several stories when they questioned him he closed the lid of the trunk after the bodies were found, but keep his playmates from following finally confessed, sobbing "If my him out of the attic in the Primicerio home."

Women's Group Asks New Deal on Butter

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian Association of Consumers urged the federal government Thursday to make surplus butter available to Canadian consumers at the same price it is sold on foreign markets.

It adopted a resolution submitted to the national convention by the Quebec (English) branch which said the Canadian consumer should be given first choice. The present government practice works to the disadvantage of Canadians.

CAC decided to make pasteurization of all fluid milk in Canada a matter of national rather than provincial policy in order to strengthen its demands. Pasteurization is compulsory only in Ontario and Saskatchewan.

Property Damage In Car Accidents Increases 13%

Traffic accidents in B.C. caused property damage of $4,839,401 in the first eight months of 1955, an increase of 13.07 per cent over the same period in 1954.

A report from the motor vehicle department has been made today showing, however, that during the month of August, for weeks, ever since a report the accident rate dropped 17.31 per cent was heard here that Bao Dai cent for the same month last year, had made contact with the Com.

The favorable August accident record Viet-minh, who rule rate helped knock down the acci-North Viet Nam.

The suggestion was that he was seeking to work out an arrangement which would permit a coalition with the Vietminh.

The report so angered the anti-Communist south that the campaign against Bao Dai, who lives in luxury on the French Riviera, was stepped up. The deposition of Bao Dai and naming of Diem to his job is expected to be a preliminary to establishment of a South Viet Nam republic.

More than one-third of Community Chest funds go to help abandoned children, broken homes, needy families. Lend a hand in the good work.

Viet Nam Votes Oct. 23 On Dai's Removal

SAIGON (AP) — South Viet Nam will hold a national referendum Oct. 23 to decide whether ex-emperor Bao Dai or Premier Ngo Dinh Diem shall be chief of state, the government announced Thursday night.

The south's 11,000,000 will be asked to decide whether Bao Dai, the absentee chief of state, shall be replaced by Diem. The answer is virtually certain. It is the removal of Bao Dai from the Vietnamese political scene.

Civic organizations and government departments have been branch today showed, however, demanding such a referendum that during the month of August, for weeks, ever since a report the accident rate dropped 17.31 per cent was heard here that Bao Dai cent for the same month last year, had made contact with the Com.

SOME GRANDMOTHER—Marlene Dietrich, the glamorous 50-year-old grandmother, wowed guests at the Sahara Hotel in Las Vegas, Nev., in a $9,000 gown (left) of nude colored transparent fabric. After a 45 number she whisked off stage to re-appear in 58 seconds flat dressed in complete masculine dress (right). It was the same outfit she wore in German movie, "The Blue Angel," that made her famous 30 years ago. (NEA.)

Soviets Free 24 Nazi Generals From Prisons

FRIEDLAND CAMP, Germany (Reuters) — Twenty-four former generals and admirals, the first German prisoners to be released by Russia under the terms of Chancellor Adenauer's Moscow agreement, today underwent a round of questioning by officials eager for details of Germans in Russia.

Top man among the 24 returnees was Walther von Seydlitz, one of two German generals nominally in charge of the anti-Nazi "Free Germany Committee" which made propaganda broadcasts from Russia into Germany during the war.

Von Seydlitz spent hours with reporters heatedly defending his actions while in Russian captivity, and said he was not afraid to stand trial before a German court. Other officers in the party snubbed him.

He said he intends to enter politics and declared that he is "interested" in the League of Germans, a party which has been banned in one West German state for Communist sympathies.

The 24 generals and admirals were the first of 9,626 prisoners to be repatriated from Russia. More senior officers were expected later today and two more groups in the next few days.

Princess Aids in Rescue Of Vancouver Fisherman

VANCOUVER (CP)—Com-Vancouver man Thursday when bined efforts of a coast vessel, his 30-foot gillnetter exploded a small power boat and a row- and burned to the waterline in boat helped save the life of a West Vancouver harbor.

Alan Brown, 30, was picked from the water by Larry Breitenbach who was operating a motor boat. He is in hospital suffering from shock and minor burns.

The Princess of Vancouver, on her way to Nanaimo, lighted the area with searchlights, D. D. Kelly picked up Brown's net with a rowboat.

Police said they believed the fire was caused by a spark from the ignition setting off fuel oil.

Change in Ship Laws Seen Hurting Arctic

Coasting Rights Held Vital for Ships On Short-Season Northern Supply Routes

MONTREAL (CP)—A Montreal real freight-forwarding company said today any change in Canada's coastal trade laws could hamper development of the Canadian northland.

The brief submitted by Gillespie-Munro Limited to the royal commission on coasting trade was one of four presented today during the three-man commission's fourth day of hearings here.

Unlike the three previous days when a majority of the briefs demanded a change in federal shipping laws to ban foreign, including British, flag vessels from Canadian shipping, all four of today's submissions demanded that British ships be allowed to continue interport Canadian shipping.

Gillespie-Munro said it has for the last several years been responsible for organizing the movement of freight to Canadian Labrador and Arctic points. The company had found Canadian canal-type lake vessels were "not satisfactory on a

Round-the-Clock 'Fire Watch' Hunts Vancouver Arsonist-Killer

VANCOUVER (CP)—A 24-hour fire watch was ordered Thursday in the crowded west end residential district as authorities prepared for a meeting to combat an outbreak of arson here.

Fire warden Louis Mulligan said his branch does not usually operate a night shift but men have been placed "at strategic locations" following the deaths of four persons Tuesday in a blaze believed to have been deliberately set. It was the 47th suspected incendiary fire in the city this year, the 21st since Aug. 1.

Air Vice-Marshal F. V. Henkes, civil defence co-ordinator, said officials of his organization will meet with fire and police officers today to discuss the situation. He declined to elaborate.

Acting fire chief R. H. Pinkerton appealed to citizens to watch for suspicious persons at fires.

Warden Mulligan, who said at "first impression" he doesn't favor voluntary patrols, added "if each person watches his own property an individual can do more on his own than a patrol."

Commenting on suggestions that volunteer patrols might aid fire and police department, he said "an individual can do more on his own than a patrol."

Ground Observer Corps Takes Over Where Radar Leaves Off

By DON ENGLISH

Strung throughout the length and a fair portion of the width of Canada is a volunteer organization of civilians who keep their eyes cocked on the sky in a round-the-clock watch for "friend or foe."

They are members of the Ground Observer Corps, an offshoot of the RCAF, that supplements radar, and keeps a constant check on all—repeat, all—air traffic in Canada.

Radar is not effective under 3,000 feet, and cannot peer around corners, therefore is helpless when an aircraft is snuggled close to the ground or shielded from radar scanners by the curvature of the earth.

But it is a crafty pilot indeed that can sneak a large aircraft past an alert man or woman on the ground who can, within seconds, send off a warning that will give its size, height, direction, approximate speed, and location at time of observation.

There is a nutshell in the purpose of GOC. An enemy aircraft is tracked and can be intercepted, and a friendly aircraft that gets into trouble is located in a tiny area that makes searching both quick and effective.

Fliers' Praise

(Authorities are chary about discussing aircraft crashes, but it is known that when there was just a hint that GOC might be scrapped, the screams from both service and civilian fliers could not be ignored. They know the worth of GOC especially in such hazardous flying country as B.C.)

At the bottom of this organization is an observer. Either man or woman, the observer is on duty 24 hours per day, seven days a week, and gets paid not a nickel for the time spent on the job.

The observer is directly responsible to the chief observer, who has charge of the training and operation of a particular post. Of course, where there is just one observer, there is no need for a chief. Where there is a crew, then the members work in shifts.

Vancouver Told

The chief observer is responsible to a regional supervisor, and he makes his reports to the RCAF.

A typical observer is Mrs. Norman Kennedy, wife of the maintenance man in charge of the Sooke Lake dam in the Greater Victoria water system. She and her husband have lived alone at the lake, on the Shawigan-Leechtown Road, for the last six years, and Mrs. Kennedy has been an observer since September, 1952.

When she sees an aircraft, she makes a report on a special pad, then telephones directly to Vancouver.

The telephone operator at the Vancouver brain of the system, known as the filter centre, directs her call to a worker who is in the position to put the information given directly on a huge map of British Columbia.

Perhaps Mrs. Kennedy has reported an aircraft that already is being tracked. If so, then its marker on the map is moved into the area from which she reported. If not, and the plane is one that has just come within the scope of GOC, then a "raid stand" is made up, starting with a plastic "pip" and being added to as more information is received.

As reports continue to come in to the filter centre, the stand is moved along its track, more information regarding speed and elevation is added, and eventually the plane concerned either lands or passes into another district.

Full Picture

GOC members are everywhere, and have developed their "intelligence services" to the point where they can say that a certain aircraft is taking off, and count on another observer to report when it has landed at its destination. It is completely independent of other agencies, and gives a picture of every aircraft in the air over British Columbia at any given time.

E. F. Stephenson is Victoria's regional supervisor, and working under his direction are Mrs. Kennedy, at Sooke Lake; J. B. Barnes, Oak Bay; K. L. Roach, Esquimalt; E. B. Mason, Saanichton; Mrs. Irene Orr, Shawnigan lake; C. J. Grest, Kapoor Camp; A. D. Angus, Malahat; and Arthur H. Lowe, Bamber-ton.

Field training officer for the Vancouver detachment, of which the Victoria region is one of 40, is FO Dick Mung-ham, a wireless air gunner who flew all over the world in transport command during the war, and who returned to the air force from civilian life especially to take up GOC work.

GOC is widespread. B.C.

There are 6,500 observers in the area south of Prince George and west of Kamloops who work out of 700 observation posts. On recognized airways posts are no more than 10 miles apart.

Every tugboat and light-house is in the system and they give their reports like any other observer. Coast logging camps belong, and policemen are almost invariably active and interested.

Real Service

In addition to being a vital line of defence, the GOC has the satisfaction through its reporting and recording of aircraft of providing a genuine and much appreciated service for fliers.

It even files flight plans for pilots, in order to speed its own work and protect the pilot. This is not a requirement, but is encouraged because of the dangerous nature of British Columbia's terrain and weather, and the huge amount of flying done in comparison with the rest of Canada.

BETWEEN TIMES

By MONTE ROBERTS

A constituent has sent along an article from the London Daily Express, which, he says "gave me food for thought."

Me too. And perhaps the rest of the constituents would be interested, as well.

The article relates the story of a London Hardware merchant, W. B. Wilkinson. Mr. Wilkinson asked the local office of the government-operated Gas Board for a new stove.

In due course, an inspector called, examined the old stove, and agreed to the request.

Shortly after, two men arrived to deliver the stove. Two days later, two men arrived to install the stove. And later still, another pair of workers called and took the old stove away.

Meanwhile, the men fitting the new stove had decided a new meter was needed. Two more men called to connect it up, while a third called to take the old meter away.

It was then decided that the pipes needed cleaning. Three men arrived in a truck to do the job. After a morning's work, they decided the trouble was not in the building at all, but under the sidewalk.

Thus an inspector and an assistant turned up to survey the situation, and make a decision. Some days later six more men arrived and dug up the sidewalk.

Two days went by while Mr. Wilkinson was without gas at all. Then a new section of pipe was installed, and everything was in working order.

But Mr. Wilkinson had not yet seen the last of his stove installing crew.

One year later, a man arrived and announced that he had come to paint the "new" gas pipes.

By Mr. Wilkinson's count, he was the 23rd workman involved in the affair of the new stove.

Well, I don't know what food for thought was given the constituent who sent the story along. Or what the London Daily Express thought of the matter.

But to me, it is very heartening.

There is obviously no danger of unemployment in London.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES

A small bush fire on the turkey farm of Alfred Phillips, Humpback Road, was quickly controlled Wednesday night by Langford volunteer fire department and B.C. Forest Service members.

Mr. Phillips was burning rubbish when the fire got away from him.

Deputy Fisheries Minister G. J. Alexander showed slides on B.C.'s fishing industry at the monthly meeting this week of the Retired Civil Servants Association here.

He said that often the most food value could be found in the less expensive fish.

With Monday Thanksgiving Day, next meeting of the Gyro Club of Victoria will be held in the Empress hotel at noon, Monday, October 17.

Deputy Agriculture Minister William McGillivray will be speaker.

Arthur LaPlante, 834 Courtney, was fined $30 or 15 days in jail when he appeared in city police court today for sentence on a theft charge.

Police said the accused went into a city warehouse, for which he had a key, on Oct. 2, and took two pillows and a canvas chestfield cover under $50 value. LaPlante pleaded guilty to the charge.

Stolen articles were valued at $15.

The Esquimalt Golden Age Club will meet next Wednesday in the Esquimalt community hall at 2.30 p.m.

Britannia branch, Canadian Legion, will meet in the clubrooms, Tuesday, October 11, at 7.30 p.m.

At the meeting the secretary will receive names of those who want to attend the south Vancouver Island district council meeting in Sooke, October 21.

Members of Alcoholics Anonymous, their friends and relatives and the general public will hold a rally at 2.30 p.m. Sunday in Metropolitan Church, Quadra and Pandora.

Mayor Claude Harrison will be chairman, and there will be a panel of well-known speakers.

AA has been functioning in Victoria 12 years and during this time approximately 1,200 persons have been helped by the organization.

Edward C. Collier, Gordon Head barracks, and Ronald Paul, Brentwood, were each fined $25 or five days in jail when they pleaded guilty Thursday in Saanich police court to charges of driving without licences.

Burrard Span Tenders To Be Called Saturday

Tenders will be called Saturday for construction of a multi-million dollar bridge to cross Burrard Inlet at the Second Narrows.

Bids for the span, cost of which has been estimated at $16,000,000, will be sought from construction firms across the nation, and will be returnable November 29.

The bridge will be built by the B.C. Toll Bridges and Highways Authority. It will be the third span across Burrard Inlet, and the toll authority's second.

Early this year, the toll authority purchased the Lions Gate bridge at the First Narrows, entrance to the harbor. A railway bridge now carries car and truck traffic across Second Narrows.

Exact location of the bridge has not been disclosed, and government officials said the reason is they have not yet obtained title to all the land required.

This week, Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi said cost of the bridge had been increased more than $2,000,000 through design changes required by the federal board of transport.

Careless Drivers Pay $75 in Fines In City Court

Fines were imposed in city police court today on two drivers involved in accidents this week.

Clifford J. MacDonald, Gordon Head army camp, was fined $40 and his licence was suspended when he pleaded guilty to a charge of careless driving on Sunday.

Police said the accused failed to stop for a stop sign while driving east on Humboldt at Blanshard and was involved in an accident which sent seven persons to hospital for treatment.

Total damages were $1,000. Frederick Bradshaw, Work Point barracks, was fined $35 on a careless driving charge arising from an accident Tuesday on Government at Belleville.

Police said the accused was driving south on Government when he struck the rear of an auto stopped for a stop light.

Not guilty pleas on careless driving charges were entered by Foster Hartnell, 600 Douglas, and Arthur Ivan Isaacson, 3104 Quadra.

Trial of Isaacson will be held next Thursday while Hartnell will appear again Oct. 14.

W. M. Martindale, Store Official, Dies Here at 25

Wharton Murray Martindale Jr., 25, assistant manager of the T. Eaton Co. hosiery department here, died in hospital this morning after an illness of some weeks.

Born in Chilliwack, he had been a resident of Victoria for the past 14 years, and in 1953 was graduated with honors in commerce from the University of B.C.

While at the university he was affiliated with Beta Theta Pi fraternity.

Surviving are his widow, Patricia Mary, at home, 623 Cowper; a son, Michael Wharton; and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Murray Martindale, 1917 Runnymede.

The funeral will be held Wednesday at 3 p.m. at McCall's chapel, and interment will take place at Royal Oak.

20-Day Term For Second 'Impaired' Count

Woodrow Nauht, 623 Bay, was sentenced to 20 days in jail when he pleaded guilty in city police court today to his second impaired driving charge in 10 months.

Another charge, that of driving while suspended, resulted in a fine of $40 or an additional seven days.

Police said the accused was observed driving in an erratic manner at about 1.20 a.m. this morning on Douglas.

It was also found his licence had previously been suspended. Nauht was previously convicted for driving while his ability was impaired by alcohol on January 3.

Former alderman Percy B. Scurrah announced at noon today he will stand against Mayor Claude Harrison in the December civic elections.

He made the statement to the Times by telephone from Nanaimo where he was attending a Rotary Club luncheon.

He said his decision stemmed from the news that first announced candidate Elmer D. McEwen was disqualified due to lack of property qualifications.

Mr. Scurrah prefaced his announcement with the question "Has anyone else come forward?"

ALD. CURTIS? He particularly wanted to know whether present alderman Austin I. Curtis had announced he would try for the mayoralty.

When told that Ald. Curtis had made no announcement, he said: "I will be running for the office, then."

Scurrah to Seek Office of Mayor

Former alderman Percy B. Scurrah announced at noon today he will stand against Mayor Claude Harrison in the December civic elections.

He made the statement to the Times by telephone from Nanaimo where he was attending a Rotary Club luncheon.

He said his decision stemmed from the news that first announced candidate Elmer D. McEwen was disqualified due to lack of property qualifications.

Mr. Scurrah prefaced his announcement with the question "Has anyone else come forward?"

ALD. CURTIS? He particularly wanted to know whether present alderman Austin I. Curtis had announced he would try for the mayoralty.

When told that Ald. Curtis had made no announcement, he said: "I will be running for the office, then."

Mr. Scurrah thought W. A.

Scott, city second-hand store operator might withdraw.

Mr. Scurrah said he would announce his platform at a later date.

His decision bore out a prediction of the Times Thursday when it was almost certain that Mr. McEwen would be forced out of the race.

It is expected that the situation will be corrected during an early overhaul of the act by the legislature.

Candidate McEwen has unencumbered property in the city with an assessed value of more than $500 and therefore can run for alderman. He said he will stand upon the same platform already presented.

All candidate's qualifications have to be complete six months prior to election date and even if he desired to increase his property now, it would be too late to qualify Mr. McEwen for this election, for mayor.

Mr. McEwen is the second non-alderman to announce candidacy for council so far. Mrs. Lily Wilson, daughter of veteran alderman Mrs. Margaret Christie announced candidacy Tuesday.

Of the incumbents whose terms of office end this year Ald. Geoffrey Edgewood has indicated he will run again. Ald. Millard Mooney has made no statement but it is expected he will run again.

His qualifications as mayor would have stood up in any B.C. centre but Victoria or New Westminster, which come under special sections of the Municipal Act.

The special section of the act says a mayoralty candidate must have property of a value of $1,000—over and above encumbrances. Until recently, this was the rule for all the province. The act was amended to remove the words "over and above all encumbrances." But the special section dealing with Victoria and New Westminster, never changed.

will again seek office. Ald. W. F. Pinfold, also has not released his plans and Ald. Brent Murdoch has stated that he will likely drop out this year due to pressure of business.

TWO TERMS

Mayoral candidate Scurrah sat on council for two terms from 1949 to 1953. A prominent Victoria businessman, president of Scurrah's Ltd., he ran unsuccessfully in the last mayoral election.

He is a third-generation Canadian, born in Ontario, educated at Welland and at Queen's University. Long an active member of Rotary International, he is a past president of the Victoria club, past district governor, and director, Rotary International. He has made his home in Victoria since 1909.

He has been a director of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, and chairman of the chamber's retail section.

In 1953, then-alderman Scurrah was the city's official representative at the coronation of Queen Elizabeth II.

His 1949 aldermanic election platform included pledges to support the appointment of a city manager, and to work toward amalgamation of Victoria and surrounding municipalities.

School Fined For Not Filing Tax Returns

Fines totalling $175 and costs of $12.50 were imposed in city police court today on charges of failing to file income tax returns.

Bunt Singh Baines, 617 Manchester, was fined a total of $50 on two charges of failing to file returns for 1949.

Also fined $50 was Norfolk House School Ltd. on two charges of failing to file returns for 1950.

Fined $25 each were Ajadib Singh, 2650 Prior; James E. Kirkwood, Arcadia Street; and Raymond Percy Moore, 515 Dalton.

ASK THE TIMES

Q.—How does one measure sawdust which is stored in a basement? Is it height multiplied by width multiplied by length multiplied by what?

—Mrs. G. V.

A.—Under the law sawdust fuel is sold in units. Each unit is 200 cubic feet of sawdust. Trucks licensed to haul sawdust carry two units, or 400 cubic feet. Unless a bin of the exact dimensions has been built in your basement you may have difficulty in measuring it. Victoria's market superintendent suggests the best plan is to be on hand to inspect the truck load when it arrives at your home. A glance then will show if the vehicle was properly loaded. If the delivery journey is several miles the sawdust may pack down a trifle but that result is not ordinarily a serious thing.

Q.—Will you please tell me what day of the week was Nov. 17, 1908?—Miss M. C.

A.—That autumn day was a Tuesday.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

OSWALD MARGISON

Ex-City Printer Returns Here as Prosperous Engineer

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Oswald Margison, who left school at 12 and worked as a printer in Victoria before battling his way through university, returned here today as head of a large firm of consulting engineers in Toronto.

Now 73, but looking 10 years younger, Mr. Margison confided that when he decided to become a civil engineer in 1912 he had never even heard of matriculation and was surprised when told that he would have to matriculate before going to university.

"There was no holding me in those days," he said. "I joined a night class at James Bay Academy and worked like steam for 14 months. It nearly killed me but I got through matriculation and enrolled at the University of Toronto as a student in civil engineering."

Mr. Margison is visiting his brothers, Rudolph and Jack, both Victoria businessmen, and his sister, Mrs. Alfred Buckle, on Salt Spring Island.

DESIGNS EXPRESS WAY

They are proud of his dynamic progress in civil engineering—and at the moment he and his associates in Toronto are designing an 89-mile express way that will cost the city between $60,000,000 and $65,000,000.

"In places the express way will run as high as 30 feet above ground level," Mr. Margison explained. "It will traverse low buildings and new bridges and will run from the west side of the Humber River—across the southern end of the city."

"We started work on it just a year ago and we hope to have a six-lane bridge over the Humber completed by next Christmas."

Mr. Margison is visiting his prosperous for a long time ahead. Resources in the West are magnificent but I feel the Rockies are something of a liability in regard to transportation and trade with the east.

MORE SELF-SUFFICIENT

"The railway companies realize they will have to take steps to reduce transportation costs, but I think the trend will be for the West to become more self-sufficient and import less from eastern Canada."

After his long absence, Mr. Margison sees many improvements in Victoria and believes it is rapidly gaining a reputation as "one of the best places in the world in which to retire."

"I have travelled widely in Canada and the United States," he said, "and of all the places I have been I would choose Victoria or San Diego, California, as most-favored from the living point of view."

"As for the national economy generally, Canada should be

Rain Boots For High Heels In Clear, Light Plastic

By PENNY SAVER

All right! So the sun has been shining. But now we have to look out for the rain. Rain boots, and umbrellas, along with coats, hats and scarves are of prime importance and should be checked over for those days when you wake up and hear rain on the roof. For ladies who don't like to have to carry an extra pair of shoes to work on rainy days, I have just the rain boots for you. The old problem used to be that we couldn't get good fitting boots to wear with high heels. Not medium heels, but really high ones. Hence, in order to keep our feet dry, we'd have to wear flat or semi-heeled shoes to work, and carry along the shoes we wanted to wear during the day. Such inconvenience. But now we can buy clear plastic rain boots especially for heels.

They fit snugly at the ankle with two clip straps. Thicker, long-wearing corrugated plastic is on the soles and heels, to give vent slipping on glassy streets. The heel is fitted so that there is no rubbing and ruining of the leather on the shoes, yet they are very attractive. Being clear, the color comes through and we still have harmony in our outfit. In all sizes, they cost just $1.39 a pair. If you prefer a pair for flat shoes, they are the same price. In fact, these can be worn with heels, too. Either pair folds up neatly, and would fit right into your purse, so that you don't have to wear them home should the day brighten up.

I saw the most attractive little burro in town today. It is made of wrought iron, and has a basket on either side of its back. In one basket, which is actually an arrangement of black wrought iron thick wire, there's a deep cigarette box trough. In the other side are three ashtrays. These and the trough are tri-sided, modernly shaped pottery dishes in white. A striking contrast and just the right touch for the modern home. This little charmer is just $2.98.

Japanese-made straw shopping baskets can be yours for as little as 79 cents. They're of natural colored straw, with bright flower bouquets on the side. Each basket is lined with light taffeta and has a pocket. Double loop handles are strong and easily grasped.

Hit a Happy Medium In Choosing a Mate

By ELIZABETH R. HURLOCK, PhD

When two people are too much alike, they do not usually get along well because one is unable to supply the other with interests. Too great a dissimilarity, on the other hand, is likely to lead to clashes and feelings of inadequacy on the part of one or both. How to hit the happy medium is the problem faced by the young man who writes:

Hurlock

(Q)—I am and always have been a rather bashful fellow. I am 26 years old, working in a strange city far away from home, and I get very lonely. I have a good job and am in a position to get married. But, my problem is to find the right kind of girl. I have been going out with a young woman, several years younger than I, who is as bashful as I am. When we are together, there are long periods of silence when neither of us can think of anything to say. I am sure that if I tried to make love to her, she would freeze up as she never feels relaxed and at ease while we are alone together.

"I have also been going out occasionally with a young woman from my office who is just the opposite. She has all the nerve in the world and is perfectly self-confident. However, when I am with her, she makes me feel like a helpless child and I rather resent her self-confidence. I suppose this is just because I envy her. Would either make a good wife for me?"—R. B.

(A)—No, you are not likely to find happiness with either one of these two young women. The bashful one is too much like you to be really congenial. She is afraid of herself just as you are afraid of yourself. When you are together, you are likely to find that the bashfulness of one will exaggerate the bashfulness of the other.

On the other hand, you certainly could never be happy with a woman who constantly made you feel inadequate and inferior. Realizing that you are bashful and timid, she would lead you around by the nose and make you feel like a helpless child, as she has already done. If you resent this now, think how much more you would resent it if you were faced with it day after day, year after year.

What you should do is try to find someone who strikes the happy medium between these two young women. Find someone who has more self-confidence than you, but who uses it to build up your self-confidence, not tear it down. By doing this, she would gradually build up a sense of confidence in you that would make you more like her, without antagonizing you in the process.

Elizabeth Hurlock will answer your personal questions. Address her in care of this newspaper.

TODAY'S RECIPE

QUICK APPLE PIE

1 cup sifted flour, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/4 cup Crisco, 1/4 cup brown sugar, packed, 1/4 teaspoon cinnamon, 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg, 2 cups applesauce, 1 add lemon juice, and spread the tablespoon lemon juice, ice cream or regular cream. Start heating oven at 375 Degrees F. Rub 8 inch pie plate with Crisco. Cut Crisco and salt into sifted flour with pastry blender or two knives until the pieces are the size of small peas. Then add brown sugar, cinnamon and nutmeg, and mix well. Fill pie plate with apple sauce, add lemon juice, and spread the Crisco crumbly mixture over it. Bake for 25 minutes or until the top is golden brown. Serve it with ice cream or regular cream. This will make about 4 servings for average eaters.

The reception will be held in the attractive lounge of the "Y" at 760 Courtney Street.

Duncan BPW Club Attend Service

To conclude Business Women's Week 12 members of the Duncan Business and Professional Women's Club, headed by Mrs. A. Loughin, vice-president, attended service at the Presbyterian Church in Duncan last Sunday.

First meeting of the club for the new season was held at the home of the president, Mrs. P. Boiston, with 11 members present. A new member, Mrs. I. Tarlton, was welcomed, and Mrs. H. A. English was named delegate to the provincial conference at Trail this week-end. Mrs. F. L. Kingston gave an outline of the program for the season, and it was announced that a talk on Africa will be given at the next meeting. Plans were made to hold a rummage sale at the end of this month. Tea hostesses were Mrs. G. Paget and Miss Kate Robinson.

WCTU Meeting

A public meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union (Rockland Park) will be held on Tuesday in Metropolitan United Church Ladies Parlor at 2 p.m. Guest speaker will be Mrs. E. W. Crawford, field secretary, who will report on her work in British Columbia among the young people. Afternoon tea will be served.

Sale Postponed—It was decided at meeting of the Women's Auxiliary to the Canadian Scottish (Princess Mary's) Regiment, to postpone a proposed rummage sale until the new year. Following business a Tupper ware party was enjoyed.

Cadboro Bay Church Scene Of Kelly-Morrison Wedding

Miss Ruth Beverley Morrison, daughter of Mrs. James Grant, New Glasgow, N.S., and the late Alfred E. Morrison, exchanged wedding vows with Brian Thomas Harold Kelly, son of Mr. Harold Kelly and Mrs. Lee Kelly of Victoria, in a ceremony in Cadboro Bay's St. George the Martyr Church. Rev. William Hills performed the afternoon ceremony, in a setting of chrysanthemums and gladioli blooms.

The bride was given in marriage by Leo Bishop. She was gowned in eggshell brocade, fashioned with a bouffant ballerina-length skirt, a low sweetheart neckline and three-quarter length sleeves. For a rust feathered hat with matching accessories, and a colonial suit with black accessories and a bouquet of chrysanthemums and yellow carnation corsage.

The newlyweds left on an extended motor tour en route to Cold Lake, Alta., where the groom is stationed with the RCAF. They will make their home there. For traveling, the bride donned a grey suit with black accessories and a bouquet of chrysanthemums and yellow carnation corsage.

Sharon Reid Wears Gold Cross With Bridal Gown

A small gold cross which had been worn by the bride's mother on her wedding day was the only jewelry worn by Sharon Joan Reid recently for the ceremony which united her in marriage with James Highet Dunn, in St. Luke's Church. Canon F. Pike performed the ceremony in the church which was bright with harvest festival flowers. E. Edwards, church organist, accompanied soloist Mrs. P. Wadams, who sang "O Perfect Love."

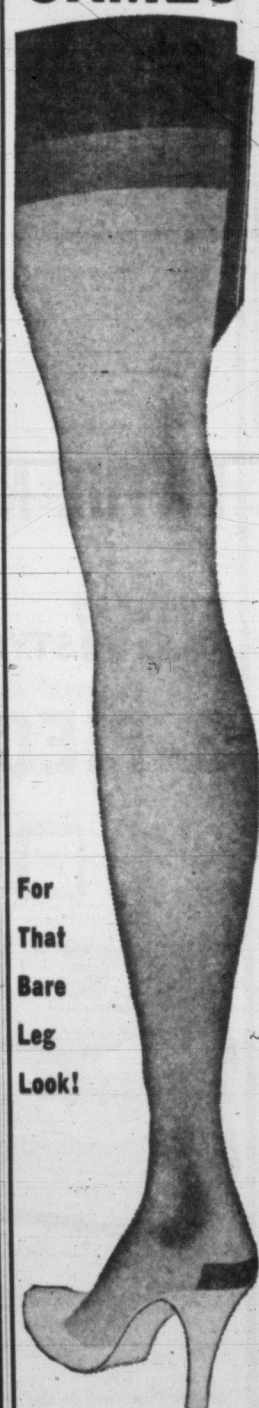

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald V. Reid, 2281 Edgewood Street, was given in marriage by her father. She wore a brocade satin gown fashioned with fitted bodice and rounded neckline dotted with iridescent sequins. A small cap of matching sequins held her misting veil. She carried a white prayer book topped with three gardenias and garnet roses tied with white satin ribbon streamers.

Maid of honor, Miss Jo-Anne Elder, wore a gown of pale yellow nylon net over satin. Bridesmaids, Miss Maureen Reid, sister of the bride, and Miss Margaret Osborne, were gowned similarly in mauve and blue. Arm bouquets of yellow carnations and chrysanthemums in autumn rusts and golds completed their outfits. Tinv, fair-haired Janet Fletcher, cousin of the bride, was flower girl in a full skirted dress of pink and blue. She wore pink and blue flowers in her hair and carried a colonial bouquet.

The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Dunn, Woodland Road, Saseenos, had William Souler as best man and Rodney Sullivan and Wesley Carlow as ushers.

Record Trade Predicted For Christmas

WINNIPEG (CP)—The biggest Christmas trade in Canada's history was predicted Thursday by executives of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce in an over-all review of the Canadian economy.

Said Raymond Dupuis, chamber vice-president:

"Purchasing power of consumers is at an all-time high. Sales this fall and Christmas will break all records. Competition is fierce, however, and in some lines profits will be only so high."

"Credit sales for the most part are sound, there are few delinquencies in payments and worries about retail credit are unwarranted."

Mr. Crean stated:

"There is no indication that our expansion is by any means exhausted. The yearly increase in population alone is providing that many more consumers."

A. C. Ashford, president of the Toronto-Dominion Bank, said prosperous conditions of the late year probably would carry on into 1956. Canadians were saving more than ever before, disposable income was greater and unemployment less.

BARRED FROM CBC—"It's unbelievable and outrageous," said Winnipeg-born violinist Donna Grescoe, when informed that she has been ruled off CBC trans-Canada television by the Toronto Musicians' Association because she does not hold a union card with Toronto Local 149. Union officials explained that they are not making a special case of Miss Grescoe but that the rule applies to all performers.

Like most things, self-satisfaction costs a little. But think of the bargain you get! Give to the Community Chest.

Teen-age Mail

By DOROTHY RICKER

Dear Mrs. Ricker: My problem may not seem very big to you but to me, and to others, it is very embarrassing.

After I come home from a date I always find the door locked. To make matters worse we don't have a doorbell. Our door is one of those thick things and I have to beat on it to make anyone hear me. Even with my pounding it takes my folks forever to come to the door and our porch is not big enough to sit down and wait.

I've tried to explain how I feel about this to my parents. They say they want to know what time I get in. It's not because I get in late for I'm usually in by the time set for me. Isn't there some way you can help me?—Trudy.

Dear Trudy: I do not know whether your parents would agree to this solution to your problem or not, but here is what I suggest.

Ask your permission to carry your own key. Then, if Mom and Dad still insist on seeing, for themselves, the time when you get in, you could go in and speak to them before going to bed.

It seems to me this would be much better than for you to have to beat on the door each night when you come home.

I think this problem is caused primarily by lack of trust and, of course, I have no way of knowing whether or not your parents have any basis for mistrusting you.

This column is conducted for teen-agers and their parents. Letters can be answered through the column only—as soon as time and space permit. Write your problems to Dorothy Ricker in care of this newspaper.

British Tories Back Tough Money Policy

BOURNEMOUTH, Eng. (Reuters)—The Conservative party, after one of the most bitter debates in its history, overwhelmingly passed a resolution Thursday praising Chancellor of the Exchequer Richard A. Butler's tough money policies.

Only about 20 of the 4,000 delegates present voted against the resolution.

The debate was sparked by representatives of sections of the country whose business has been hard-hit by overseas competition and speakers on behalf of inflation-struck, fixed-income groups.

Butler's speech at the annual party convention foreshadowed early and heavy cuts in public expenditure and declared that he intended to continue his "credit squeeze" which makes installment buying and borrowing from banks more difficult.

Butler said the government will back atomic development and new inventions but will hold back sharply on new government building and the defence program will be adjusted back to meet modern needs.

The debate showed that the Conservatives' exuberance over victory in last spring's elections was tempered with anxiety over the economic situation.

One of the most violent attacks on government policy came from John Crabtree of the depressed Lancashire textile district.

Crabtree declared the industry is "being strangled to death" by

Canada Urges Curtailment Of Missiles

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Canada appealed to the United Nations disarmament sub-committee today to help ease the "terrible threat" posed by the intercontinental ballistic missile.

Health Minister Martin, chairman of the Canadian delegation, told the sub-committee in effect that something must be done now to halt development of the weapon.

The intercontinental missile was an aspect of the disarmament question which the sub-committee had not yet considered and he urged that it be tabled for consideration.

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer
WASHINGTON (CP)—A 55-year-old Pennsylvania wheat farmer tucked a double-barrelled shotgun under her arm recently and challenged the United States government on one of the key provisions of its farm price-support program.

Miss Elsie Mumma, who farms land pioneered by her ancestors in 1624, threatened personal violence on government representatives who tried to enter her land to measure the number of acres planted to wheat. They suspected she had over-planted.

The case, now before the courts, involves the U.S. wheat quota system, which the spinster-farmer called "ungodly" but which the United States Supreme Court several times has ruled to be valid and within the competence of the administration.

MUST OBSERVE LIMIT

Under the law, acreage allotments are required for six basic crops — wheat, cotton, corn, tobacco, peanuts and rice—except in times of emergency, such as war, when the secretary of agriculture may proclaim them null and void.

To obtain government price supports, a farmer must stay within his acreage allotment. If he exceeds it, all he loses is price support. This means he must sell his crop on the open, unsupported market for whatever it will bring.

But, in times of really big surpluses, the government can enforce its acreage allotments as a matter of law by imposing marketing quotas. These have real teeth, with heavy penalties, and are the basic point at issue in the Mummy

When the total supply of one of five basic commodities—corn is exempted—reaches a point 35 per cent above "normal" supply, the secretary of agriculture is required by law to proclaim marketing quotas. This is what Secretary Ezra Benson did last spring, when he determined that the July 1 carryover of wheat would be in excess of 1,000,000,000 bushels—consumption, plus foreseeable exports, for two full years.

ASSURED HIGHER MINIMUM

To go into effect, these quotas must be approved by two-thirds of all eligible wheat growers in 36 states listed as "commercial wheat areas." The quotas, providing only 55,000,000 acres of wheat this year, against 73,000,000 in 1954, were approved in a referendum in June.

By accepting the quotas, farmers obtained the government's guarantee that they would receive at least $1.81 a bushel for their wheat. Had they rejected quotas, reports would have dropped to $1.19 a bushel.

The marketing quotas, based on an average yield of 20 bushels to the acre, are binding on every wheat farmer in the 36 commercial states, whether or not he wants them. When acreage allotments alone are in effect, the only penalty for over-planting is loss of price support. When quotas are in effect, the offending farmer also is subject to a penalty of 90% cents a bushel.

This penalty applies only to wheat produced on excess acres. The government sends the farmer a bill. If he does not pay, the government moves to collect the penalty just as it does to collect back taxes.

MUST SHOW CARD

Until an over-planted farmer pays his penalty, he cannot sell his wheat to anyone. This is enforced through a "marketing card" issued only to those who have complied with regulations. A wheat buyer always demands to see a seller's card. If he buys without the card, the buyer becomes liable for the farmer's penalty.

The government holds that farmers like Miss Mumma, who don't like price supports and who over-plant, can break the wheat market and wreck the co-operative effort of hundreds of thousands of farmers who support the government program.

Miss Mumma had an answer for the government men who tried to estimate her production. "If they set foot on my land again," she declared, "I'll shoot them, so help me God."

U.S. Farm Policy Faces Challenge By Line Farmer

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (CP)—A 55-year-old Pennsylvania wheat farmer tucked a double-barreled shotgun under her arm recently and challenged the United States government on one of the key provisions of its farm price-support program.

Miss Elsie Mumma, who farms land pioneered by her ancestors in 1824, threatened personal violence on government representatives who tried to enter her land to measure the number of acres planted to wheat. They suspected she had over-planted.

The case, now before the courts, involves the U.S. wheat quota system, which the spinster-farmer called "ungodly" but which the United States Supreme Court several times has ruled to be valid and within the competence of the administration.

MUST OBSERVE LIMIT

Under the law, acreage allotments are required for six basic crops — wheat, cotton, corn, tobacco, peanuts and rice—except in times of emergency, such as war, when the secretary of agriculture may proclaim them null and void.

To obtain government price supports, a farmer must stay within his acreage allotment. If he exceeds it, all his losses in price support. This means he must sell his crop on the open, unsupported market for whatever it will bring.

But, in times of really big surpluses, the government can enforce its acreage allotments as a matter of law by imposing marketing quotas. These have real teeth, with heavy penalties, and are the basic point at issue in the Mumma case.

When the total supply of one of five basic commodities—corn is exempted—reaches a point 35 per cent above "normal" supply, the secretary of agriculture is required by law to proclaim marketing quotas. This is what Secretary Ezra Benson did last spring, when he determined that the July 1 carryover of wheat would be in excess of 1,000,000,000 bushels—consumption, plus foreseeable exports, for two full years.

ASSURED HIGHER MINIMUM

To go into effect, these quotas must be approved by two-thirds of all eligible wheat growers in 36 states listed as "commercial wheat areas." The quotas, providing for only 55,000,000 acres of wheat this year against 78,000,000 in 1954, were approved in a referendum in June.

By accepting the quotas, farmers obtained the government's guarantee that they would receive at least $1.81 a bushel for their wheat. Had they rejected quotas, price supports would have dropped to $1.19 a bushel.

The marketing quotas, based on an average yield of 20 bushels to the acre, are binding on every wheat farmer in the 36 commercial states, whether or not he has accepted them. Acreage allotments alone are not enough to impose a penalty for over-planting is loss of price support. When quotas are in effect, the offending farmer also is subject to a penalty of 90% cents a bushel.

This penalty applies only to wheat produced on excess acres. The government sends the farmer a bill. If he does not pay, the government moves to collect the penalty just as it does to collect back taxes.

MUST SHOW CARD

Until an over-planted farmer pays his penalty, he cannot sell his wheat to anyone. This is enforced through a "marketing card" issued only to those who have complied with regulations. A wheat buyer always demands to see a seller's card. If he buys the wheat without the card, he and the farmer's penalty.

The government holds that farmers like Miss Mumma, who don't like price supports and want over-plant, can break the wheat market and wreck the co-operative effort of hundreds of thousands of farmers who support the government program.

Miss Mumma had an answer for the government men who tried to evict her from production. "If the set foot on my land again," she declared, "I'll shoot them, so help me God."

Alberni Valley Pioneer Marks 90th Birthday

ALBERNI—Mrs. Frances Morrison, resident of Vancouver Island since the 1870's, this week celebrated her 90th birthday at her Margaret street home, where she lives with her sister, Mrs. Patty Haslam.

Her father was Emmanuel Cox, Irish-born immigrant who brought his wife and four children to Victoria from San Francisco. He became lightkeeper at Berens Island, rowing his children to the mainland to attend Craigflower school.

The family moved to Cape Beale in 1875, where Mr. Cox operated the lighthouse, and the children grew up on the west coast.

Mrs. Morrison has lived 65 years in the Alberni, in which time the town grew from a tiny hamlet to the two industrial cities with combined population of more than 12,000.

Her son, Tom, is well known in Victoria as a retired department of transport district marine agent. A daughter, Mrs. Jack Muldrew, lives in Victoria, and a second daughter, Mrs. Dave Moore, is in Duncan.

Hemlock Bark Aids Oil Well Drillers

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Cinderella tree, its long, thin trunk ignored for years by the lumber industry, soon will be the only tree in the British Columbia forests to be completely utilized.

The hemlock, spray-needled conifer, is cut for lumber, chipped for pulp, the sawdust and shavings power steam plants and now the bark will be used for a new product in the oil fields of the western hemisphere.

GIRL MISSING AT SIDNEY

SIDNEY — Maxine Magee, 14, missing from her Third street home since Wednesday morning, is the object of an RCMP search here.

She was described as five feet, three inches in height, weighing from 110 to 115 pounds, and blonde. She was wearing a tan shortie jacket, navy blue skirt, and scarf when last seen.

Less than 20 years ago, the hemlock was used only for pulp or low-grade lumber.

Now Alaska Pine and Cellulose, Ltd., strips the logs of bark for a product they call rayflo. All grades of lumber are taken out and the tag ends are ground for the pulp.

The sawdust and shavings go for fuel in the company's mills.

The company is spending $7,000,000 to build a new rayflo plant at the southern limits of Vancouver.

Rayflo, a new product, is a dispersant commonly called a thinner—for oilwell drilling muds. It is a reddish-brown powder described by chemists as a polymeric polyphenol.

In oil drilling, fluids called muds serve several purposes in the drilling operation. They lubricate the drilling tool, seal the hole against gas and oil pressure and bring drill cuttings up to ground level.

The muds combine with clay in the drill hole, thickening it and making it difficult to pump out. In deep holes, thinners must be used to keep mud dispersed and fluid enough to be circulated.

Rayflo is undergoing tests in Alberta oil fields; being used exclusively in at least one Texas field, and is being tested in Venezuela.

Only a limited supply of rayflo is available now, and that from the research laboratories of Rayonier, Inc., at Shelton, Wash. Rayonier is the parent body of Alaska Pine.

The 30-foot boat was the Lone Ranger, of Ketchikan. Owner is John C. Wood, but it was not known how many were aboard.

The Powell River Co. tug, N. R. Lang reported by radio that a fishboat named Chenega rescued the crew and were attempting to salvage the Lone Ranger, which had run out of gas while operating from Butedale, 300 miles north of Vancouver.

Bull Harbor is on Hope Island, at the extreme northern end of Vancouver Island, and east of Cape Scott.

Housing Plan Start Set for Saturday

NANAIMO — Official ceremony to mark the beginning of the senior citizens' housing project here will be held Saturday at the five-acre home site at Grant and Nelson Streets.

Soroptimist Club this week cleared $200 at a harvest supper to bring its total contribution to the fund to more than $5,000. The project has the support of 45 other organizations in the district.

Salt Spring Ferry Skipper Wins Acclaim

GANGES—Marking 25 years of "faithful and safe service rendered to the traveling public" as master of Mv. Cy Peck, car and passenger ferry operating between Fulford Harbor and Swartz Bay, Capt. George A. Maude of Fulford was honored Wednesday evening at a dinner at Harbour House, Ganges.

Gathered to honor Capt. Maude were shareholders of the Gulf Islands Ferry Co., owners of the Cy Peck, and their wives, also members of the crew of the ferry and their wives. Guests from Vancouver Island were deputy minister of highways Evan Jones and Mrs. Jones; steamship inspector A. Stephens and Mrs. Stephens. Mr. and Mrs. Tom Bailey, all of Victoria, and J. S. Rivers of Sidney.

Following the dinner, Mr. Jones presented Capt. Maude with an inscribed barometer set in a ship's wheel of mahogany and brass on behalf of a group of Salt Spring Island residents.

Mr. Jones remarked on the outstanding record of Capt. Maude operating the ferry for 25 years without an accident.

Mrs. Maude was presented with a bouquet of chrysanthemums.

Chemainus Parents Meet School Staff
CHEMAINUS — Teachers were introduced to parents at the regular PTA meeting here this week.

M. Marks introduced the elementary school staff and John Rukin introduced the junior high teachers.

It has been suggested that the PTA groups in the district hold a Christmas concert with school children taking part, in place of their December meeting.

Municipal Election
COURTENAY (CP) — Civic elections may be held this year in Courtenay for the first time in five years, City Hall officials said. Ald. Hale Stewart is expected to resign from council for business reasons. Ald. Perry Hanson and two Courtenay residents have indicated they may run for council.

Shipwrecked Sailor Reluctant to Leave

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (Reuters)—A retired British naval officer who unexpectedly found his Utopia on a windswept Pacific atoll is reluctantly preparing to end "the most pleasant and happy period" of his life. Commander Victor Clark, 45, is about to bid farewell to the 74 Polynesian-English inhabitants of Palmerston atoll. Clark and his one-man West Indian crew were shipwrecked in a storm one year ago on the atoll, a tiny dot in the Pacific near the Samoan Islands.

The islanders, descendants of an Englishman, William Massey, who landed on the island in 1863, helped Clark repair his yacht to sail back to civilization and he expects to leave next week.

Says Clark: "I've made some wonderful friends among the natives and am looking forward very much to the time I can come back and stay another year."

Margie Weathered Storm--Thanks To Family, Children's Service

(By TONY DICKASON)

This is the story of Margie. It's not intense drama, though a pitiful one. But there is a happy ending, thanks to the Family and Children's Service here, which will receive $34.80 of every $100 collected in the current Red Feather drive for $210,000.

Margie's father left home for good, just about the time she was born. He wasn't a bad man, exactly, but just couldn't face that extra responsibility atop the fights Margie's mother and he had been having for years.

TOO EXPENSIVE
Mother had to work to keep the family going, but someone had to look after Margie. For two years, Mrs. Johnson, as we will call her, had a woman in who attended Margie. But this was terribly expensive, and there was little love involved; just a business arrangement.

Then Margie was "placed out" with a series of families. Result was that Margie became emotionally upset with fear, loneliness, and "unwantedness." She sobbed at every visit of mother.

She'd cling to her mother, and cry in desperation when the end of visits came.

Feeling futile, Mrs. Johnson asked the Family and Children's Service to help her find a place for little Margie. That was three years ago. The FCS realized Mrs. Johnson would make a good mother if only they could get "over the hump" with the child.

Mrs. Johnson couldn't pay all costs, but she paid what she could for her child, in a foster home.

Margie's foster parents were wonderful people. They grew to love Margie and she them, but they never forgot Margie's mother loved the child also. Between the group of them, the youngster never felt deserted, or lost.

The social worker from the service was there also, talking to the foster parents and to the mother, explaining, reassuring, but never forcing the situation.

Recently Margie had her fifth birthday, and the new school year, kindergarten. Margie went back home, to a home she had never lived in but which had been made real to her in the love and support of the adults in her life.

And what made it possible? The professional help of a social worker and the money of a generous community.

U.S. Readies 10 Man-Made Moons

Earth-circling satellites will be launched in the U.S. and Soviet Russia within 18 months, geophysicists said today. U.S. announced Thursday "work has begun" on the basketball-size gravity-defying spheres, using triple-stage rockets. U.S. plan to launch 10 of the spheres in 1957—the International Geophysical year. Though scientists discount reports U.S. and Soviet are racing to be the first to penetrate space, Washington sources hint the U.S. satellites could be ready six months before the target date, July 1, 1957—just about the time the Soviets say they'll launch their man-made moons.

French Troops Revolt Over African Service

ROUEN, France (UP)—Some 500 French army reservists recalled to fight in North Africa barricaded themselves in their barracks today and defied riot squads to oust them.

The group had been recalled for service with the 406th anti-aircraft and artillery regiment. They were to be flown to North Africa, but started their sitdown strike Thursday night in the Richepanse barracks in Rouen.

Meanwhile Premier Edgar Faure, fighting for his political life in the National Assembly, today mustered two former premiers to help plead with today's mutineers who were deserting him.

Missing Cancer Victim Found In Hospital

TORONTO (CP)—Police said today that Grover Nelson, 32, of Raymond, Alta., who disappeared three weeks ago after he was told he had cancer, has been located under an assumed name in the cancer ward of the Toronto General Hospital. Nelson left Raymond to find a home for his wife and two children in Edmonton. He visited a doctor while there and was told he had cancer. Nelson's family said in Raymond they feared he would take a room and die before getting medical attention. His wife said she wanted to join him as soon as she knew his whereabouts.

WORKERS GIVE $43,681 TO CHEST

Since the Community Chest campaign for $210,000 started Monday, $43,681.75 has been raised from employees of firms in Victoria area.

Last year, by comparison, only $29,046 was received. Campaign by more than 1,000 volunteers starts Monday in the residential areas.

CAIRO, Egypt (UP)—Crown Prince Feisal, foreign minister of Saudi Arabia, said today that Russia offered to supply his country with arms.

$100-A-WEEK ERRAND BOY

Expectant Father, 22, Given Eight Years for Running Dope

VANCOUVER (CP)—Walter Billon, 22-year-old mill worker, sentenced to eight years for trafficking, delivered $100,000 worth of narcotics up to Sept. 11, police said Thursday.

When he was arrested, $250,000 worth of heroin was found in his home, sealed into glass jars "like preserves."

For this, the man described as errand boy of the underworld received $100 a week.

Police said Thursday that Billon was a "part-time criminal" under surveillance by RCMP and city drug teams since July 28.

Officers, who asked their names not be used, traced Billon's activities for reporters. He went to work each morning in a sawmill and went home to his pregnant wife each night.

On Sept. 10, the day before his arrest, he took his wife out.

The following day he received a telephone call to leave an ounce of heroin in the west end residential district.

Police moved in and 13 hours later he pleaded guilty before Magistrate Oscar Orr.

CROSSWORD PRIZE $125; 'FAN' WAS THE STOPPER

"Tan" was one of the words that threw contestants in The Times' Crossword Puzzle for a loss last week with the result that this week's total prize jumps to $125.

"A lovely — can help a model to look her best" was the clue, and most entries gave the answer as "tan." But a tan is part of a model's person and thus does not "help her."

She can only be helped by something external to herself. "Fan" would be such a thing.

"Bet" and "Cast" were other correct answers that eluded most contestants, most of them giving "get" and "cost" as the solution.

Complete solution to last week's puzzle with explanations of more difficult clues and a new Crossword Puzzle for this week appear today on page 26.

Mr. Eisenhower wants to talk with Dulles concerning the Oct. 27 meeting of the Big Four foreign ministers in Geneva.

Today's medical bulletin said the president had a good night's sleep awaking "refreshed and cheerful."

Vice-president Richard M. Nixon and Sherman Adams, the assistant to the president, will fly here Saturday with Dr. Paul Dudley White, the Boston heart specialist.

RUSS WHEAT BUY HINT AT MOSCOW

Pearson Talks on Trade May Mean Big Change in Canadian Policy

MOSCOW (BUP)—Soviet-Canadian trade talks opened today by External Affairs Minister Lester B. Pearson raised the prospect that in return for the admission of Russia to the most-favored-nation section of the Canadian tariff the Soviets would buy a substantial quantity of Canadian wheat.

Canada has a bargaining factor in the current talks in the fact that even such Soviet satellite countries as Czechoslovakia and Poland are on superior trading terms with Canada, a situation obviously damaging to the prestige of Moscow.

The question is whether Moscow is ready to remedy it at the cost of a substantial purchase of wheat, balanced mainly by the access of Russian furs to the Canadian market on the same terms as furs from the most favored nations.

REVIVED PATTERN?

Canadian trade advisors participating in today's talks emphasized that in the so-called normal wheat trading pattern of some years ago Russia bought Canadian wheat for its Asiatic requirements because shipment from Vancouver was cheaper than rail shipment from the Crimea.

The hope in the current talks is to revive this trading pattern, but Canadian negotiators were unprepared to predict what the prospects of a Canadian-Soviet general trade agreement might be under the somewhat complex factors existing.

They admitted, however, that such an agreement was a main objective of Canadian foreign policy.

Pearson today toured the permanent agricultural exhibition of Moscow. He lunched at the exhibition with top Russian agricultural officials and the visiting Canadian correspondents.

In the course of the lunch, Pearson presented Soviet officials with a gift of seeds of 36 varieties of hardy Canadian grains, including "samples of the best wheat in the world."

In accepting the gift, agricultural fair director N. V. Tsitsin expressed the hope that on an early visit to Canada he might be able to bring seeds which by that time would represent the best wheat in the world. Tsitsin, however, did not dispute Pearson's claim of Canadian wheat supremacy.

Downtown Vancouver Bid Foiled; Grabs $4,000 in Royal City

VANCOUVER (CP)—A blonde, pleasant gunman robbed the New Westminster branch of the Bank of Montreal of $4,000 shortly after 11 a.m. today and walked out into a driving rain unnoticed.

Description of the youth tallied almost exactly with that of a man who an hour earlier tried to hold up the Canadian Bank of Commerce at Granville and Hastings Streets.

SAME MAN?

Police were checking the possibility the bandit was the same man.

New Westminster police said later they were hunting a late-model car which sped away from the vicinity of the bank directly after the holdup there. Witnesses said the car contained a man, woman and child.

KIDNAPPED?

Police said the man might have had a getaway car parked near the intersection or he might have kidnapped the woman and child and stolen the car to make his bid for freedom.

The gunman entered the New Westminster bank shortly after 11 a.m. and wrote at the cheque desk until the building was clear of customers.

Then he walked to teller Mrs. Faye Barber and handed her a cheque form on which was written "Don't touch the alarm."

IDENTICAL WORDING

In the downtown Vancouver holdup attempt, a man, described as five feet, 11 inches tall, blonde and good-looking pushed a note with the identical wording at teller Barbara Rawlins of Deep Cove, B.C.

She turned around to hand the note to her superior and heard him say:

"Hand it over."

VANISHED

"I handed the note to assistant manager Harold Fisher," she said. "By the time I looked around, the man had vanished."

"I thought there was a gun," Mrs. Barber said when describing the Royal City raid. "He had a newspaper folded over what looked like a nickel-plated revolver. I don't know if it was a toy or the real thing."

After she handed the contents of her cash drawer to him, she said, he walked calmly through the door into a busy suburban shopping district.

$100,000 Fire Razes Store At Pr. Rupert

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C. (CP)—A four-hour fire of unknown origin caused more than $100,000 damage to one of the city's biggest furniture and appliance stores Thursday and almost claimed the life of a bookkeeper.

Left a charred shell was a pioneer store operated by Jack and Durian McRae.

Mrs. H. S. Nickerson, alone in the building after closing hours, was found on the floor gasping for breath by garage owner Gus Stromdahl, who carried the woman to safety.

The fire wiped out a dozen, chesterfield and bedroom suites, hundreds of records, plus radio and phonograph equipment, 49 washing machines, and hundreds of dollars worth of carpets and mattresses.

The blaze was finally brought under control before it spread to an adjacent barber shop, doctor's office and a drug store.

Five tenants of apartments next door to the furniture store evacuated their furniture as hundreds of residents lined the streets.

Police blocked off all streets as firemen with three pieces of equipment and 1,000 feet of hose and gas masks, battled the blaze and smoke caused by burning linoleum and mattresses.

Island 'Loop' Road Still Far Distant

Completion of a loop road that will permit motorists to drive through Sooke to Port Renfrew, then east to Shawnigan Lake and the Trans-Canada Highway, is still in the far distant future, a B.C. Forest Products official said today.

Work now is going ahead on the Jordan River-Port Renfrew link, however, and will be declared "officially under way" at a ceremony later this month.

"We are still using the rail link on 12 miles of the route between Shawnigan Lake and Port Renfrew," the company spokesman said. "It would cost a fortune now to convert it to a truck haul."

END OF 1956

The west coast community of Port Renfrew, meanwhile, is waiting with interest for the completion of the Jordan River connection, possibly by the end of 1956.

At present the company is building an access road to the southern boundary of its operation that will permit full-scale work to go ahead. The opening ceremony will be held on its completion.

Meanwhile, Canadian Puget Sound Lumber and Timber Co. Ltd. of Jordan River is pushing road steadily westward, and now has crossed Loss Creek, 12 miles beyond Jordan River.

B.C. Forest Products will build about five miles of road, leaving only a seven-mile stretch in between that will be built by the provincial government.

The roads are being built under the forest management plan, under which timber companies agree to build access roads through their properties.

Rhee Coup Nipped in Bud

SEOUL (Reuters)—The South Korean army counter-intelligence corps claimed today to have rounded up nine Koreans who had planned to assassinate President Syngman Rhee.

The nine planned to throw hand grenades at Rhee as he addressed a military parade Tuesday, the intelligence corps said. It charged the group intended to stage a military coup to overthrow the government after killing Rhee.

Trophy for Sandown Feature

Top thoroughbreds from B.C. stables will go to the post Saturday for an $800 purse in the featured Percy Fox Memorial race at Sandown Track. The purse will be accompanied by the Percy Fox Memorial Trophy, held here by Elsie Edwards. Among the horses nominated for the race are Pen Oracle, Magic Note, Rennerb and Beau Sierra. FINAL
BULLETINS

Drug Trafficker Gets 10 Years

VANCOUVER (CP)—Steve Chekaluk, 32-year-old tug-boat deckhand who said he lost his battle with the devil, was jailed today for 10 years by Judge Arthur Lord. Chekaluk, sentenced for trafficking in drugs, told Judge Lord he was imprisoned on a minor offence in the past and took to reading the Bible.

"But the devil led me astray," he said.

Paratroopers Tangle in Air, But Live

BURTONWOOD, England (AP)—Two American paratroopers jumped from an airplane Thursday, tangled in mid-air on one parachute and lived to laugh today about their escape.

They are Sgt. Albert Campbell of San Bernardino, Calif., and Airman Jackie Shanks of Central City, Ky.

Engineer Killed in Train Mishap

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—One railway man was killed and two others severely injured when blown from their engine today when a drive rod of a Canadian National Railway freight flew off, punching a hole in the boiler and shooting steam through the cab.

The engineer, identified only as Pritchard of Sarnia, Ont., was killed. Brakeman A. J. Campbell and fireman J. Laur, also of Sarnia, were injured.

'Suppose I'll Get Life'—Petlock

MELVILLE, Sask. (CP)—An RCMP constable from Edmonton today quoted John Petlock, charged with the murder of his brother, as saying "I suppose I'll get life for this."

Const. A. Wodk, testifying at Petlock's preliminary hearing, guarded Petlock in a barracks cell block.

Lake Dragged for Young Wife

REVELSTOCK, B.C. (CP)—RCMP conducted dragging operations today following reports that Mrs. John Lowndes, 17, of Penticton, B.C. was drowned in Summit Lake, 12 miles west of here after an auto in which she was riding plunged into the lake.

ROUEN, France (UP)—Some 500 French army reservists recalled to fight in North Africa barricaded themselves in their barracks today and defied riot squads to oust them.

The group had been recalled for service with the 406th anti-aircraft and artillery regiment. They were to be flown to North Africa, but started their sitdown strike Thursday night in the Richepanse barracks in Rouen. Meanwhile Premier Edgar Faure, fighting for his political life in the National Assembly, today mustered two former premiers to help plead with supporters who were deserting him.

The powerful Socialist party with 105 votes in the Chamber of Deputies refused to back Faure's North African reform policies, virtually assuring that Faure would be ousted as 21st postwar premier.

My Recompense Wins
Second to Return $16

When the favorite Lady-Able showed no liking for the heavy going, My Recompense, six-year-old brown mare, romped home in the second race at Sandown track this afternoon to return a neat $16 for a $2 note wager. With rain falling at post time, the crowd was small and the track a bit heavy.

Staying close to the pace in the early running, My Recompense closed fast in the final sixteenth to grab the lead from Amplifier which finished second. Amplifier picked up the pace-setting Ardwick Lad on the final turn but couldn't hold off the winner. Active Pass closed fast in the stretch to tie third. J. Lynn rode the winner and the time was 1:15 1/5. My Recompense paid $8.40 to place and $7 to show. Active Pass paid $4.20 to show.

The quinnella was worth $45.95.

FAVORITE WINS

Green Leaves, an even-money favorite, with Leon Guarasci up, took the opening race with Here's Tae Us second and Ipaki third.

It was strictly a two-horse race with Green Leaves and Here's Tae Us leading the pack to the wire by eight lengths. Winner's margin was by a head in a photo finish. Time for the six furlongs was 1:15 4/5. Green Leaves paid $4.10, $2.70 and $3 across the board. Here's Tae Us paid $3 and $2.50. Ipaki paid $4.10 to show.

Edna's Flyer, with J. Broomfield up, won the third race with Western Man second and Harvester third. Mutuels were: Edna's Flyer $6.70, $3.50, $2.60; Western Man $8.10, $3.10; Harvester $2.60. Time was 1:14.

Fans are reminded first post for Saturday will be 1.

U.S. Deports
Ex-Victorian

SEATTLE (AP)—Mrs. Hazel Anna Wolf's long fight to avoid deportation to her native Canada is over and the former Victoria woman who has lived in Seattle for more than 30 years will be deported Oct. 20.

Magistrate Oscar Orr.

When he was arrested, $250.00 worth of heroin was found in his home, sealed into glass jars "like preserves."

For this, the man described as errand boy of the underworld received $100 a week.

Police said Thursday that Billon was a "part-time criminal" under surveillance by RCMP and city drug teams since July 28.

Officers, who asked their names not be used, traced Billon's activities for reporters.

He went to work each morning in a sawmill and went home to his pregnant wife each night.

On Sept. 10, the day before his arrest, he took his wife out.

The following day he received a telephone call to leave an ounce

Downtown Vancouver
Bid Foiled; Grabs
$4,000 in Royal City

VANCOUVER (CP)—A blonde, pleasant gunman robbed the New Westminster branch of the Bank of Montreal of $4,000 shortly after 11 a.m. today and walked out into a driving rain unnoticed.

Description of the youth failed almost exactly with that of a man who an hour earlier tried to hold up the Canadian Bank of Commerce at Granville and Hastings Streets.

SAME MAN?

Police were checking the possibility the bandit was the same man.

New Westminster police said later they were hunting a late-model car which sped away from the vicinity of the bank directly after the holdup there.

Witnesses said the car contained a man, woman and child.

KIDNAPPED?

Police said the man might have had a getaway car parked near the intersection or he might have kidnapped the woman and child and stolen the car to make his bid for freedom.

The gunman entered the New Westminster bank shortly after 11 a.m. and wrote at the cheque desk until the building was clear of customers.

Then he walked to teller Mrs. Faye Barber and handed her a cheque form on which was written "Don't touch the alarm."

In the downtown Vancouver holdup attempt, a man described as five feet, 11 inches tall, blonde and good-looking pushed a note with the identical wording at teller Barbara Rawlins of Deep Cove, B.C.

She turned around to hand the note to her superior and heard him say:

"Hand it over."

VANISHED

"I handed the note to assistant manager Harold Fisher," she said. "By the time I looked around, the man had vanished."

"I thought there was a gun," Mrs. Barber said when describing the Royal City raid. "He had a newspaper folded over what looked like a nickel-plated revolver. I don't know if it was a toy or the real thing."

After she handed the contents of her cash drawer to him, she said, he walked calmly through the door into a busy suburban shopping district.

OIL LINE BROKE

He radioed to Bellingham at 11:45 a.m. that an oil line had broken, they feared a fire, and were going to land near Orcas Island.

An RCAF rescue plane from Vancouver, a crashboat and the Coast Guard cutter rushed to the scene.

The plane hovered over the scene, ready to drop rescue equipment if needed until the cutter had taken the seaplane in tow.

The crashboat was returning to Vancouver from Patricia Bay when diverted to the scene.

Control tower operators at Patricia Bay airport heard the distress message and hurriedly started organizing to send a vessel out to the scene, but abandoned the plan when other craft were reported heading to the plane.

CROSSWORD PRIZE $125;
'FAN' WAS THE STOPPER

"Fan" was one of the words that threw contestants in The Times' Crossword Puzzle for a loss last week with the result that this week's total prize jumps to $125.

"A lovely — can help a model to look her best" was the clue, and most entries gave the answer as "tan." But a tan is part of a model's person and thus does not "help her." She can only be helped by something external to herself. "Fan" would be such a thing.

"Bet" and "Cast" were other correct answers that eluded most contestants, most of them giving "get" and "cost" as the solution.

Complete solution to last week's puzzle with explanations of more difficult clues and a new Crossword Puzzle for this week appear today on page 26.
